Report Has Khrushchev Out in Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—Usually reliable sources said today Premier Khrushchev has resigned.

Leonid I. Brezhnev has taken over as first secretary of the Communist party, the key job in this country, and Alexei Kosygin has become premier, the sources said.

There was no official confirmation.

MOSCOW (AP) — Strong rumors, supported by a number of signs, swept Moscow tonight that a change at the top of the Soviet government might be imminent.

Premier Khrushchev, 70, has not been mentioned publicly for two days. He was missing today from a luncheon attended by every other top leader of the Soviet Communist party.

Most prominent among those other leaders recently has been Leonid Brezhnev, whom Khrushchev removed from the figurehead job of Soviet president last July to take a more important job in the party. Khrushchev is first secretary of the party as well as premier.

The government paper Izvestia, which usually publishes in the evening, delayed its appearance until Friday morning. It will coincide with publication of the Communist party paper Pravda.

Such simultaneous publication is the traditional way of making announcements of supreme importance here.

A collection of black limousines was noted today outside the headquarters of the party's Central Committee, indicating a major meeting.

Hurricane Heads for Coast of N. Carolina

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Isbell, crossing up the Weather Bureau, swung today into a broad turn that aimed her 100-mile winds at the North Carolina coast.

An advisory at 1 a.m. EST said the hurricane was expected to make a right turn away from land. But an hour and a half later, Isbell had swung instead to the left.

A still bigger turn then was forecast and North Carolina residents were warned that hurricane force winds and high tides probably will reach the coast this afternoon.

Gale warnings and a hurricane watch were issued from Charleston, S.C. northward through North Carolina.

Isbell was centered about 240 miles an hour. Earlier, it had been moving north-northeast.

The hurricane moved into the Atlantic after a fast Florida crossing that spared the state the devastation Isbell brought to Cuba. But she gave birth to tornadoes that injured 39 persons in Florida.

At least six and possibly more tornadoes whipped out of the leading edge of the small but vicious storm, demolishing house trailers, unroofing homes and other buildings in several communities.

The hurricane went out to sea after passing just north of Palm Beach, famed winter playground of the wealthy, leaving the city largely without electricity and its streets littered with debris.

Orders 29 Spa Places Closed Up

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Circuit Judge P.E. Dobbs ordered Garland County Prosecutor David B. Whittington today to take "legal steps to abate" what the court termed 29 "nuisances" in Hot Springs and the county. Whittington said he would do so.

The order listed 28 establishments which the court said, "have been issued licenses by the city to sell and dispense liquor by the drink and for some of them to operate slot machines."

Records show the establishments paid a special amusement tax levied under a 1963 city ordinance.

Whittington said he is taking "immediate action to request that the peace officers (of Hot Springs and Garland County) investigate the places and see that the state law is followed."

Dobbs issued the order from the bench during a court session attended by Whittington.

In an interview later he said that he agrees with Sheriff Duffie Searcy that a raid on Jud's Steakhouse Monday night, where three slot machines were taken, was a political move.

Dobbs said he did not mean to imply that Gov. Orval E. Faubus had political motives in ordering the raid. He said the raid was a "political move locally inspired." He did not elaborate.

"If Faubus had officially notified me that he wanted the club investigated, I would have passed that information on to the sheriff, and I know he would have carried out my orders," said Dobbs.

He said he was never contacted officially regarding any of the operations at the raided steakhouse.

Garland County casinos closed last March after Faubus told county officials to close them or he would use state force. But a number of bars continued selling mixed drinks, in violation of state law.

The Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce is waging a campaign for the adoption of a constitutional amendment to legalize gambling. It will be on the Nov. 3 general election ballot.

GOP Percentage in South Climbing

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A leader in Barry Goldwater's campaign in the South said here Wednesday that polls show the senator's percentage of southern votes has fallen about 70 to 55 per cent.

But, said Jack LaRue of Jackson, Miss., assistant regional director for Goldwater, the percentage is climbing again.

He said Goldwater led in Arkansas, according to a poll during the first week of October.

Top Johnson Aide Jailed on Morals Charge

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter W. Jenkins, a top assistant to President Johnson for 20 years, was arrested at the Washington YMCA on morals charges in 1959 and again last week, police records show. The White House has announced his resignation.

A soft-spoken Texan who was an army major in World War II, Jenkins, 46, and the father of six, has been associated with the President since Johnson was a congressman. His resignation was announced in New York where the President was campaigning Wednesday night.

Records of the police morals division showed that Jenkins was arrested five years ago on a charge of "disorderly conduct (pervert)" and on Oct. 7 this year on a charge of "disorderly (indecent gestures)." He forfeited collateral in both cases.

The Jenkins development may carry political implications as the presidential campaign heads into its stretch run.

Aides traveling with Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican candidate for president, declined to comment immediately. But in Washington, Clifford White, chairman of the Citizens Committee for Goldwater-Miller, said in a statement "the effects upon America both nationally and internationally can only be surmised at this time."

And, before the Jenkins resignation was announced, Dean Burch, Republican national chairman, issued a statement that charged "the White House is desperately trying to suppress."

Supersonic Jet Plane Unveiled

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The Air Force unveiled today the supersonic F111, a sleek fighter plane designed during the heat of industrial competition and assembled amid a Senate investigation.

Known familiarly as the TFX, the F111 emerges now as a political issue in a stormy presidential election year.

The aircraft made its debut in a brief ceremony at General Dynamics' huge Fort Worth plant.

General Dynamics Corp. joined Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. in pursuing the coveted contract, worth eventually in the neighborhood of $5.5 billion.

The award touched off widespread controversy. Charges of favoritism and politics echoed in Congress, the Pentagon and offices of administration leaders.

The dispute centered around a contention that Boeing Co. submitted a superior design while promising considerable long-range production savings.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara hailed the F111 as the "greatest single step forward in combat aircraft to occur in several decades."

McNamara attended the unveiling of the plane he defended against congressional opposition.

He was joined on the speaker's platform by Secretary of the Navy Paul Nitze and Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert.

Featuring a variable-sweep wing, the F111 grew from a search for one fighter plane that would satisfy requirements of both the Air Force and the Navy.

The multipurpose, all-weather tactical fighter has a topspeed two and one-half times the speed of sound or 1,655 miles-per-hour. The two-man craft is capable of supersonic speed at sea level as well as high altitudes, and landing at speeds under 150 m.p.h.

The F111 will be able to change its wings in flight from the virtually straight position to the sharply swept position. Its maximum operating ceiling is about 60,000 feet and its minimum operating altitude under 500 feet.

Military men call it "trans-oceanic" — capable of flying anywhere in the world within one day. It contains in-flight refueling capabilities.

The plane can be armed with conventional or nuclear weapons of all types.

Barry Tells of Rising Dismay, Doubt in LBJ

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today there is "a rising tide of doubt and dismay... all across the land" concerning the presidency and charged President Johnson is "shadowed by suspicions which no amount of handshaking and hurrah can chase away."

The Republican presidential nominee said Johnson's "great and good friend, Bobby Baker, has been exposed as a manipulator of high office," and the President's "name and office is linked with that of a convicted criminal, Billie Sol Estes."

Goldwater swung into south Texas for a day of campaigning after two days before large, enthusiastic crowds as he moved back and forth across the Midwest farm belt and on to the edge of the Rocky Mountains for a rally Wednesday night in Denver.

In a speech prepared for his first Texas stop in Harlingen, Goldwater returned to the attack on the Bobby Baker case — the issue he said hurts Johnson most. He paired this with the Billie Sol Estes affair.

Estes, a Pecos, Tex., financier, has twice been convicted for fraud.

The Arizona senator said the President "must be using every power of his great office, right now, yesterday and tomorrow, to cover up one of the sorriest rumors we have had in the nation's capital."

In response to a question before he delivered the speech, Goldwater said he meant rumors about Bobby Baker's ties with the White House.

In his campaigning, Goldwater said he had found something troubling the people of America.

He added: "The people have looked at the White House and have found it dark with scandal. The latest Bobby Baker investigation has been called off until

No Comment on Jenkins by Barry

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today he would have no comment "at any time" on the case of Walter W. Jenkins. Jenkins, a top assistant to President Johnson for 20 years, has resigned after being arrested on morals charges.

President Johnson, pushing his campaign in upstate New York, also preserved silence on the case, which broke into the open Wednesday night.

Political leaders of both parties sought to gauge the effect of the development on the Nov. 3 election. Thus far there were few public statements.

At Denver, when Goldwater was asked for comment on the case, he said: "I haven't seen an account of it. We've just had a report. I don't intend to comment on it at any time."

Jenkins, it was disclosed, was arrested at the Washington YMCA on morals charges in 1959 and again last week.

The public housing Citizens Advisory Committee met Tuesday at Emmet with Mrs. James Hamilton, chairman, in charge. It took the following action:

Voted to enforce the law against littering ditches and streets and dumping trash on other peoples property. Already the town has paid out $100 this year to pick up rubbish tossed out in the streets, or ditches.

The group reminded this is taxpayers money that could be directed to some useful purpose. The cooperation of all is needed. The committee is composed of Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Scott Ross, Mrs. Otis Townsend, Mrs. Lucille Haltom, Mrs. C.B. Ward, Mrs. Jesse Hawthorne, Mrs. Willie Gillett, Mrs. Hoyt Rose and Mrs.

Jenkins Was Checked by FBI in 1958

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI made a security investigation of Walter W. Jenkins in 1958 but has made none since that time, informed sources said today.

These sources said the 1958 security check disclosed no personal behavior that might reflect unfavorably on Jenkins' clearance for access to classified materials.

The FBI refused to comment publicly on the case of Jenkins, who resigned as President Johnson's special assistant Wednesday night after it became known he had been arrested here in 1959 and again last week on disorderly conduct charges involving morals.

The FBI makes no security investigations of government job applicants or potential jobholders unless specifically requested by an executive agency. Informants said no such request as to Jenkins was received from the White House. Jenkins has been with Johnson for 25 years.

Informants said the 1958 FBI check on Jenkins was made at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission. Johnson was at that time Democratic leader of the Senate and received much classified information. Jenkins was an assistant to Johnson.

press a major news story affecting the national security."

Later, in New York, a White House aide was asked if Jenkins had sat in on meetings of the sensitive National Security Council. "I'd have to rely on memory in a case like this," he said. "I'd not want to rely on memory."

Jenkins' resignation and appointment of Bill D. Moyers, another White House aide, to take his place were announced by George Reedy, White House press secretary, at a news conference in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Johnson was at the hotel to address the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation dinner.

Earlier, when asked about Burch's statement, Reedy had said, "I don't know what he's talking about."

The announcement that Jenkins had resigned was made a few hours after he was hospitalized in Washington with what was described as "extreme fatigue."

Dr. Charles Thompson, the physician who sent Jenkins to the hospital, told The Associated Press his patient was suffering from "insomnia, tensions and agitation," that he was "just worn out" from pressures that built up since Johnson became President.

Numerous reporters received tips late Wednesday about the Jenkins arrests. Alerted by the tipsters, who were anonymous, they checked police morals division records.

These records showed that on Jan. 15, 1959, Jenkins was arrested at the YMCA on a charge of "disorderly conduct (pervert)" by two police officers, gave his occupation as "clerk" and elected to forfeit $25 collateral.

On Oct. 7 of this year, the records show, he was arrested again by police officers at the YMCA, was charged with being "disorderly (indecent gestures)," forfeited $50 collateral and again gave his occupation as "clerk."

At the same time and place on Oct. 7 a man identified as Andy Choka, 60, of the U.S. Soldiers Home, was arrested and charged with being "disorderly (indecent gestures)." He forfeited $50 collateral.

In the District of Columbia the charge of disorderly conduct is a broad category that covers many offenses. Forfeiture of collateral usually closes such cases as far as the police are concerned.

At the FBI a spokesman declined comment when asked if Jenkins' 1959 arrest was noted during the security check that is customarily made of White House personnel.

An $18,600-a-year administrative assistant to Johnson when he was vice president, Jenkins was named to the White House staff late last year, soon after Johnson succeeded the assassinated John F. Kennedy, as President. His White House salary is estimated at $22,500 to $25,000.

This year Jenkins' name cropped up several times in the Senate Rules Committee's investigation into the affairs of Bobby Baker, resigned secretary to the Senate Democrats.

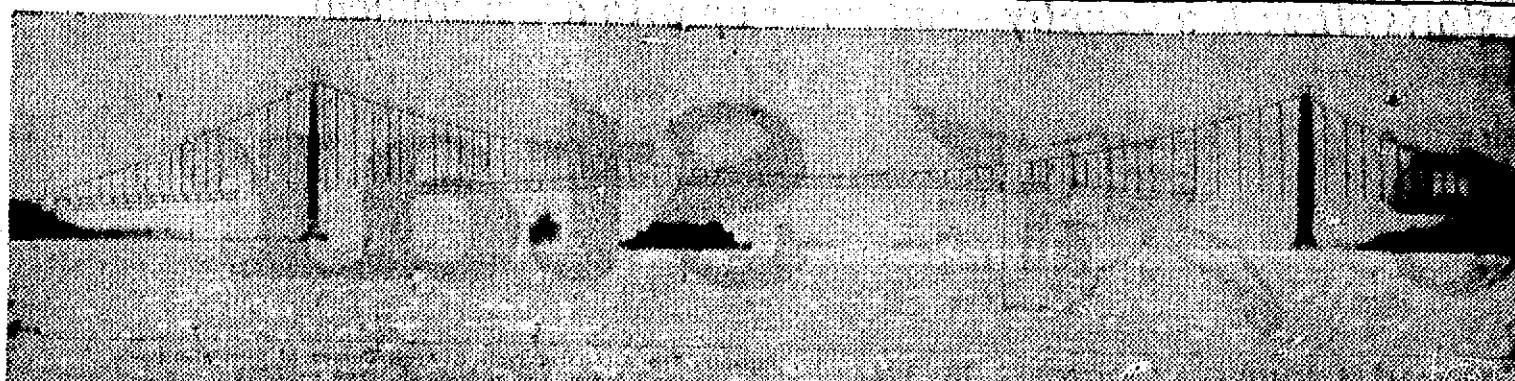

Republicans demanded that Jenkins be called to testify on allegations that at his suggestion Don B. Reynolds, a local insurance man, purchased advertising time on the Johnson family's Austin, Tex., television station in 1957 after selling Johnson life insurance.

Jenkins denied in a sworn statement that he knew anything about the arrangements for Reynolds' purchase of the advertising time — advertising time Reynolds said he did not need.

The Senate Rules Committee, which is 6 to 3 Democratic, voted that way not to call Jenkins to testify.

A native of Jolly, Tex., Jenkins was a senior at the University of Texas when then Congressman Johnson offered him a job.

While in the Army, Jenkins married the former Marjorie Whitehill. They have two daughters and four sons, aged to 17. White House sources said the president first learned of Jenkins' hospitalization as a result of questions from reporters. Asked to comment on the charges against Jenkins, a White House spokesman said:

"I'm not going to leave any implication one way or the other."

I am not going to be placed in any position of compromising Mr. Jenkins."

Asked by newsmen about Jenkins' arrest record, a White House aide said, "We're looking into all those matters."

Reedy said Jenkins had submitted his resignation as special assistant to the President in writing and that Johnson had accepted it and named Moyers to succeed him. Reedy said he had not seen Jenkins' letter.

LONDON (AP) — The London Evening News said tonight big changes are imminent in the Palm Beach suburb, Hobe Sound, a residential island north of Palm Beach, and Loxahatchee, south of Lake Okeechobee.

After leaving Cuba, Isbell brushed Key West, southernmost city in the continental United States; then tore into the Everglades with winds up to 105 miles an hour.

At Everglades City, on the southwestern tip of Florida, about 350 residents who refused to evacuate watched the storm from the second floor of the City Hall.

Some 200 others had left the tiny community, which was wrecked by Hurricane Donna in 1960, after being warned of possible 10-foot tides.

In Cuba, Fidel Castro's faltering economy suffered another damaging blow as Isbell destroyed much of the rich tobacco crop and a number of the government's tobacco warehouses.

But Isbell brought nothing to Florida to compare with the devastation she left behind in Cuba, where four died, hundreds of homes were destroyed, thousands evacuated from flooded lowlands and crops ruined.

The worst of the tornadoes whirled out of the Atlantic and ripped through Boynton Beach, a coastal city of 14,000, destroying about 20 house trailers and injuring at least 22 persons.

"It sounded like a freight train," said Mrs. L. S. Chadwell, who with her husband and two sons-in-law watched in terror as the twister tugged the roof off their 54-year-old home.

"Everything turned dark and it hit us," Mrs. Chadwell said. "I screamed for them to fall on the floor when the roof started coming off."

They were not injured. Seventeen persons were hurt at Eau Gallie when a tornado demolished a dozen house trailers, lifted the roof off a church during services and blew a house across a road.

The twister ripped through the town of about 19,000 while the center of the hurricane was about 80 miles down the coast near Palm Beach.

"We were all sitting in the church listening to the preacher when the tornado hit," said a woman member of the congregation of the Glad Tidings Church of Eau Gallie.

Part of the church's roof was blown away and its doors and windows were smashed, but the small congregation escaped without injury.

after election. The latest report on Billie Sol Estes has been a whitewash.

But Goldwater said Bobby Baker couldn't "be brushed aside as a factor in the election" and "men and women all over America know that Billie Sol Estes was a friend of the man who now occupies the White House and that he dealt with the principal assistants of the man who now occupies the White House."

The Arizona senator added that, "his assistants who dealt with his friends, Billie Sol and Bobby B., are protected behind a whitewash curtain in the White House itself."

He said Americans "seek Soviet government and that these changes could affect Premier Khrushchev himself."

In a dispatch from Moscow, an Evening News correspondent said the speculation was heightened by "three mysteries surrounding the Russian leader."

First is the fact that Khrushchev's portrait is missing from its place in Red Square where the three latest Soviet astronauts are being welcomed Friday.

Second, said the News, President Osvaldo Dorticos Torrado of Cuba, who arrived in Moscow Wednesday for a state visit, has not yet met Khrushchev.

The third factor is lack of mention of Khrushchev by the Soviet press and radio over the past two days.

many different things from a president in a political sense — but morality is another thing. Americans expect every president, regardless of his promises and his programs, to at least talk straight and act straight. "There can be no substitute for honesty in public office," Goldwater said, adding that this "was the issue that is eating at the integrity of the highest office in the land."

The Arizona senator swung from Milwaukee to the Rockies Wednesday, slamming at the Bobby Baker case and calling for taking away the great concentration of power in Washington.

He told a cheering crowd of more than 13,000 at the Denver Coliseum he would take off "bureaucratic shackles" and get the Bobby Baker case "cleared up in a hurry."

He sounded similar notes in Kansas City and Omaha to equally enthusiastic crowds.

Junior members of the American Legion Auxiliary met Monday, October 12 in the Community Room of the First National Bank with Mrs. Joe Jones, Junior Activities chairman, as hostess.

Poleda Glanton, Junior Chairman, presided; Betty Schenck, Sergeant-at-Arms, led the pledge of allegiance; and Margie Herndon, Chaplain, voiced the opening prayer. A new 5-star American Flag and an American Legion Auxiliary flag were presented to the group by Mrs. Jones.

As a community service project for October, the group decided to make and serve Halloween cup cakes to the patients at the Hope Nursing Home on Saturday, October 31. The girls who wish to wear costumes may do so, and a prize will be awarded for the best one.

Plans were made to collect, distribute a food basket to a needy family at Thanksgiving. Every member is to bring canned food to the November meeting.

Brenda Bain was welcomed as a new member, bringing the total membership to 28. Martha Bader, Cecilia Delaney, and Brenda Bain were appointed as year book chairmen.

Junior members will meet jointly with the Senior Auxiliary Tuesday night, October 20 for the installation of the newly elected junior officers. Cold drinks and cookies were served to the 13 members present.

Tuesday Bridge Club

Mrs. Lloyd Spencer was the hostess for a meeting of her Tuesday Bridge Club on October 13, and she had mixed flowers in pretty bouquets in her home. After the two tables of club members had concluded play, the high scorer was Mrs. Lyle Brown and second high was Mrs. E. J. Whitman.

Snacks were served with cold drinks or coffee.

Citizens Advisory Committee Of Emmet Meets

The Citizens Advisory Committee of the Public housing project at Emmet met Tuesday night, October 13, at 7 with Mrs.

James Hamilton, chairman.

W.S.C.S. Meets

The W.S.C.S. of the First Methodist Church met at the church Monday, October 12. The meeting was opened with the singing of the hymn, "Happy The Home," followed by a prayer by Mrs. Cecil Weaver.

The president, Mrs. C.V. Nunn presided over the business session. Mrs. Charles Taylor announced that the study session on "The Study of Genesis" will be held at the church November 9 through the 12th. It was also announced that the week of prayer and self-denial will be observed in the sanctuary of the church on October 26 through the 30th, at 9:30 in the morning.

Mrs. Edwin Ward read a beautiful memorial in honor of Mrs. L. D. Barnum. Circle 5 had charge of the program with Mrs. Calvin Smith and Mrs. James Robertson presenting a most interesting program on her Young American mother and who she is — her hopes, her problems, and her challenges.

The group was dismissed by repeating the W.S.C.S. benediction.

Friendship Class Meets

The Friendship Class of the First Baptist Church met in the Educational Building Tuesday at 7:30 for their regular meeting and the installation of officers.

In a most impressive manner, Mrs. Frances Reynerson, using the subject, "Mirrors" and the scripture II Cor. 3:18, installed these officers: President, May King; vice-President, Elizabeth Rogers, sec-Treas., Edna Fielding, Group captains, Sally Andrews, Jane Browning, Margaret Sumpter.

Each member was presented a miniature mirror as a reminder of the image that is reflected of their everyday lives. Mrs. Reynerson took pictures of the group after which the hostesses, Jane Browning and Ruth Hornaday served delicious cake and coffee to eleven members and one guest.

Coming and Going

Thursday, October 8, four members and one leader from the Shover Springs 4-H Club attended the fair at Little Rock. Those attending were Pat Wore, Jimmy Holwell, Dwayne Arrington and Lorena Arrington, and the main leader, Laura Sue England. They were accompanied by Miss Deloris McBride, Home Demonstration Agent and Dwight Davis, assistant county agent.

Mrs. H. O. Green has recently returned from a visit in Prairie Grove with the Jack Prichett family and in Tulsa with Dr. and Mrs. Dan Christman and family.

Mrs. Dolph Carrigan spent the weekend in Shreveport with Mr. and Mrs. Victor Perdue and son and Dr. and Mrs. Joe A. Longan.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McKinnon, Santa Fe, N.M., are visiting the John McKinnons and other relatives here and in Magnolia.

Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Guerin have gone to Washington, Wash., for the Golden Wedding Anniversary celebration of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Guerin.

Mrs. Minnie DeBord, Lubbock, Tex., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Walters, Mr. Walgrast littering ditches and Gurdon.

Mrs. Herbert Lewallen and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Turner spent the weekend in Dallas with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stephens and family.

Buy At Home?

Editor The Star: As a merchant doing business in Hope, Arkansas, I am beginning to wonder just why our Chamber of Commerce and others do not try to live up to their slogan of "Trade in Hope."

We are all justly proud of the fact that the City of Hope is remodeling the old Chamber of Commerce and removing the eye-sore that it was and making it into a new modern building. This has been needed for a long time.

It has come to the attention of the writer that certain contracts have been let out of town concerns for the installation of equipment that could have been purchased locally through local authorized dealers. Now we realize that the City of Hope is footing the bill for all of the remodeling of the building, and under the circumstances that a contract was let to an out of town concern without contacting any local merchants to see if they could supply same, although local people had made inquiry about the contract.

Now it seems that surely the Chamber of Commerce should be civic minded enough to at least make inquiry into the purchase of any and all materials that could be bought locally for their use, thereby backing up their slogan of Trade in Hope with deeds instead of words. It would also be wise for the City to advertise for bids for materials and equipment that could be bought locally instead of in Little Rock, El Dorado or Texarkana.

Let's trade in Hope and make Hope a better city.

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and the premiers of Canada's 10 provinces have agreed on a formula for amendment of the Canadian Constitution by the nation's Parliament and not by Britain's.

A communique after a meeting Wednesday between Pearson and the premiers termed the agreement a "milestone in the evolution of Canada's government."

All changes in the British North America Act — the Canadian Constitution — now must be approved by the British Parliament. An act incorporating the agreement will be approved by the provincial legislatures and the Canadian Parliament before being submitted to the British Parliament. It will be the last Canadian constitutional change.

Life in Arkansas

By J. C. TILLMAN

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian government said today its forces have killed three more Indonesian guerrillas and captured 16 in Johore State in the past few days.

The announcement said two guerrillas were killed in the Labis region of Johore, where an estimated 96 Indonesians made a parachute drop Sept. 2. BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The military advisers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization ended a routine meeting today after discussing alliance defense plans for the area.

Detailed attention was given to the plans for the defense of the SEATO treaty area as part of the constant high priority requirement to meet likely contingencies, the final communique said.

A Little Rock youth got his football and finances mixed up last weekend. In fact, not being a student of games, he was completely confused.

The conversation went something like this, after the father chided the son for asking, tiredly in front of a whole stadium full of fans, how many more innings they had to go in the Arkansas-Baylor game.

Father: "Innings," in football?

Helpful mother: "It isn't innings, son, it's..."

Anxious son: "Quarters?"

Mother: "How many quarters?"

Youngster: Fifty cents.

worth?"

Another youngster, in Stamps became confused over current events. The five-year-old came into Mrs. Izee Eaton's Sunday School class wide-eyed to reveal that a little girl pushed over a water tank and killed a lot of people.

Just who, graciously demanded Mrs. Eaton, was this horrible little girl. "Aw, you know, that girl Hilda, is the one that done it!" came the reply.

"One man that undoubtedly watched the final game of the World Series with unusual interest today was Leonard 'Spot' Taylor, an efficient Jonesboro family cook for the past 30 years.

Eighteen years ago E. C. Barton, an avid baseball fan, told Taylor that if the Cardinals ever won a pennant again, he would provide a trip for him to see some of the series games.

Until last week, that promise remained a dream. Then he got to see, true to the promise, the first two games of the series, at St. Louis.

Could the outcome of that series through the first six games have been guessed, Taylor might well have swapped the openers for the final set-to.

Back about 1934, Walter Currutt of Jonesboro attempted a bit of prestidigitiation, slight-of-hand — for a few of his friends and came up a silver dollar short.

What happened was this: Currutt explained to a few of his friends how handily he could flip four cartwheels from the back of his hand and catch them as they fell.

He caught only three. The fourth one might as well have been a baseball lost by a kid. Nobody could find it.

Last Saturday some friends of Mrs. Currutt, now a widow, began to repair her front porch and she told them to "Look around for a silver dollar. It's been there for 30 years."

A few minutes later Bill Williams ripped up a board, and there lay the 1901 silver dollar. Mrs. Currutt said she had forgotten about until the porch repairs began. "It has a lot of sentimental value to me," she says now.

Bobcats Will Try to Keep in 1st Place

By CARTER HARDAGE
Hope Star Sports Editor

Trying to keep a firm grasp on first place in 4AA, the Bobcats will have to rid themselves of the Fairview Cardinals tomorrow night in the Homecoming game in Hammons Stadium.

Always keen rivals, the Cardinals promise nothing less for this year.

Capable of much better football, the Cardinals haven't been able to find themselves thus far. They have failed to register a win, although they showed strongly against both Camden and Smackover.

In their conference opener, they battled arch rival Camden to a 6-6 deadlock. The following week they were bombed by rugged Smackover 13-7.

It was only two years ago that the Cardinals spoiled the Bobcat Homecoming by shutting out Hope 7-0.

One of last year's best matches was down at Fairview. Not rated to give the Cats much trouble, they held Hope at the small end of the score for all but the final seconds of the fourth period, when the Cats capped a fifty-four yard drive with a plunge from the 1 to go ahead 19-15.

This year's Cardinal attack features big quarterback Bobby Bush, who weighs in a 182. Besides being a rough runner, he can also go to the airways.

Strengthening the Fairview running game are punishing fullback Carl Hern (174) and halfback Richard Jones (160).

They use a monster defense and can be rough when and if they get together.

Game time tomorrow night is 7:30. Pre-game Homecoming activities begin at 7:05.

Here are the probable starting line-ups:

Passing Porkers Right on Target

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said quarterbacks Fred Marshall and Bill Gray were sharp and on target with their passes in Wednesday's practice.

Broyles also said No. 3 quarterback Ronny South, a sophomore, was "really booming that ball" during a pre-practice punting session.

The coach said the workout was not as impressive as Tuesday's, but it still was crisp and serious.

Broyles said he didn't want Arkansas to get ready for its Saturday game with Texas too soon.

The Razorbacks are No. 8 in the nation. Texas is No. 1.

State DAR Regent Will Talk When John Cain Chapter Meets at Washington Tavern

Mrs. Edward Lynn Westbrook

Mrs. Edward Lynn Westbrook, State Regent, State Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the John Cain Chapter, NSDAR, Wednesday, October 21, at The Old Tavern, Washington, at 12 noon.

Mrs. Westbrook has been an outstanding member of DAR for many years. She is a charter member of the Jonesboro Chapter, and served as Chapter Regent for two separate terms, two years each. She has held many State offices, including that of State Recording Secretary and State Vice Regent. She has served as State Chairman for: Americanism, two terms; DAR Good Citizens, two terms; for DAR Magazine; DAR Schools; and Junior American Citizens.

She is Past President, State Officers' Club; Life Member, National Vice Regent's Club; State and National Promoter, C.A.R.

Mrs. Westbrook is a graduate of Miss Hutcherson's School, Memphis, Tenn., and a graduate of Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

In addition to her DAR activities she is an Amateur Accredited Judge of Flower Shows of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, and a Member of the Arkansas Council of Judges.

She is the wife of Edward Lynn Westbrook, Attorney, of Jonesboro, Arkansas.

Her talk will follow the theme of "New Plans and Views of DAR Work." She has recently returned from the National Board Meeting, Washington, D. C., and will bring the new plans for DAR work to the Chapter.

The luncheon meeting will be held in the rustic kitchen of the Old Tavern in Washington. It has been planned to be held in Washington since the Diamond Jubilee Project of the John Cain Chapter is the making of a 35 mm slide program of Historic Washington, Arkansas. The Diamond Jubilee began October 11, 1964, and is the observance of the 75th anniversary of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, founded in October 1890. The slides will include pictures of the many historic buildings, outside and inside; the furnishings, many of which have been contributed by individual members of John Cain Chapter; and the many interesting antiques on display there.

A map of Washington and the surrounding area, showing all access routes to Washington, is being prepared by Miss Alice "Lile," commercial artist, and will be given by Miss Lile as a contribution to the Chapter. A slide will be made of this map, and it will become Slide No. 1 of the program.

The slides are being made by Mr. Clyde Davis, professional photographer, under the direction of Mrs. Richards Howard, American Heritage Chairman, Mrs. McDowell Turner, and Mrs. Charles A. Haynes, Executive-Secretary, Washington Restoration Foundation.

Mrs. Westbrook will present the completed slide program to National DAR Headquarters in Washington, D. C., during Continental Congress, April 19 - 23, 1965. It will then be available to all DAR chapters in the United States for showing at their meetings.

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Undersea explorer Jacques Piccard says he's going to ride the Gulf Stream from the South Atlantic to the North Atlantic in his deep diving bathyscaphe.

Piccard told a news conference he wants to study the underwater flow of the Gulf Stream and pick up samples of ocean flora.

The trip may take two months, said Piccard, who is attending a meeting of the world federation of underwater activities. He said he would submerge off the coast of Latin America. He didn't say when.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Barry Goldwater says her husband likes steak so much he could eat it for breakfast.

"But," said Mrs. Goldwater with a grin, "he usually skips breakfast and has a light lunch and a simple dinner, especially when I'm cooking."

Mrs. Goldwater was in Harrisburg to boost her husband's campaign for president.

Series Down to Wire 7th in 10 Times

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For the seventh time in the last 10 years, the World Series went down to the seventh and final game today with the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees all knotted up at three victories apiece.

The odds favored the Yankees 10-13 although the Cardinals never had lost a seven-game series in four previous appearances.

And for the third time in this Series, the Cardinals' Bob Gibson and the Yankees' Mel Stottlemyre prepared to match pitches, each seeking his second triumph, with only two days rest.

The wall, and enemy grounds, the American League champions averted elimination Wednesday with an 8-3 victory behind young Jim Bouton featuring some old-time Yankee bombing.

The victim was Curt Simmons, 35-year-old left-hander who vainly sought his first Series triumph. Simmons did well through five innings but ran afoul of the home run bats of Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, who connected back-to-back in the sixth to break a 1-1 tie.

Joe Pepitone's grand slam climaxing a five-run inning in the eighth put the game on ice and made Bouton the first two-game winner of the Series.

"I'm glad we're playing the last game in this park," said Yankee Manager Yogi Berra, his broad face spread even wider in a large grin.

"The boys seem to hit better here than in Yankee Stadium. The way they hit today, they wish we'd play here all year."

Failure to wind up the Series in six games didn't appear to disturb Johnny Keane, the Cardinal manager.

"I said at the start the Series could go down to the wire," he said. "We're used to this kind of scrambling. We've had to scrap all year so why not now?"

"I still think we can win it. We're better off than we were at the start. We have to win only one and in our own park. That should give us the edge."

Keane said he would pay close attention to how Gibson warmed up before the game.

"I don't think the short rest will affect him," he said. "But if I see he doesn't look sharp in his warm-up I'll switch to Saadecki."

Gibson toiled 10 innings in his 5-2 winning effort Monday striking out 13 batters. At that time, he was pitching with his normal three-day rest after having been beaten 8-3 in the second game.

Berra had no doubts about his seventh game starter.

"It'll be Stottlemyre," he said. "Whitey (southpaw Whitey Ford) is still hurting. He limbered up during Wednesday's game and told me he couldn't make it. That heel injury he aggravated in the opening game still bothers him."

Yanks Show Muscles for First Time

By TOM PENDERGAST
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Bronx Bombers had done some real bombing for a change, and Manager Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees couldn't be contained.

"The way the boys hit today," he quipped, "they wish they'd played here all year."

The dreaded Yankee muscle, which had sparked only occasionally during the previous five games of the World Series, unleashed three home runs in Busch Stadium Wednesday. And the Yanks took an 8-3 victory, pulling even with the St. Louis Cardinals at three games apiece.

"I guess we can take our bags out of the hotel lobby and back into the rooms now," grinned Yankee right-hander, Jim Bouton, who got his second Series victory.

The Yanks struck in a dazzling manner, as the M and M boys — Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle — hammered consecutive homers and Joe Pepitone hit a grand slam to sew up Bouton's win.

The Cardinal starter and loser, left-hander Curt Simmons, gave up the homers to Maris and Mantle in the sixth inning with the score tied, 1-1.

"Outside of those two bombs, my stuff was all right," he said after the game.

"I threw Maris a real bad handing curve ball," Simmons said, "and he hit it out of the park. That pitch to Maris was really upsetting."

Mantle followed Maris.

"I'm very careful with Mantle," Simmons said, "so I really put some speed on that pitch. It was away from Mantle, but he was going with me."

Mantle was intentionally walked in the five-run Yankee eighth inning. He scored, along with two teammates, when Pepitone hammered reliever Gordie Richardson's curve ball for a grand slam. That broke up the game.

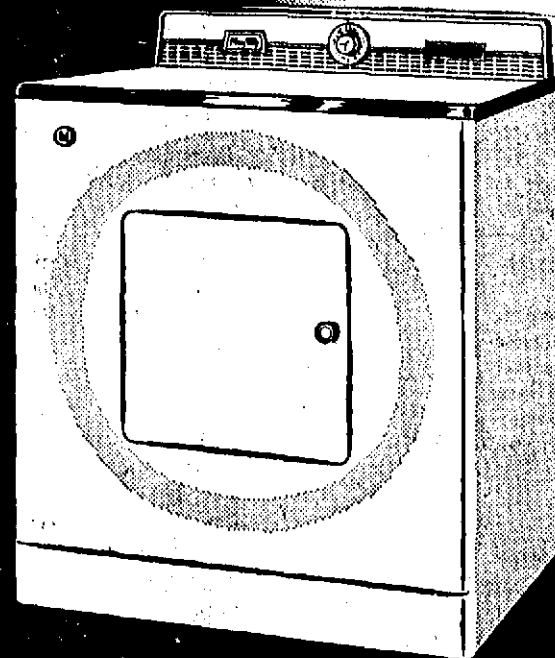

"I hadn't been hitting well," said Pepitone, who had only three hits in the Series. "But I just kept swinging. I'm bearing down all the time and when the fans get on me, I beat down a little more."

"Nothing compares to this," he said of his four-run blast. "I just wanted to make sure I touched every base."

MAYTAG
DRYER

No other dryer on the market at any price can offer all these 9 features:

1. Lets you dry even delicate lingerie. Because clothes dry at lower temperatures surrounded by a gentle circle of warm air — no hot spots.
2. Wash 'n' Wear button dries all your wash 'n' wear perfectly — eliminates wrinkling problems. Also has push button for "Air Fluff" and "Regular" drying cycles.
3. Cool cabinet — fan is not heated until it's ready to enter the drum. This keeps cabinet cool, and results in more fuel economy. The heat you pay for is the heat you get.
4. Unsurpassed "High Speed Drying" — all air in the drum is changed every two seconds. Dries a load of 32 diapers in 32 minutes.
5. Big-family Load Capacity.
6. Efficient lint filter — positioned directly in front of the exhaust fan. All exhaust air passes through the filter.
7. Zinc-coated steel cabinet — defies rust, assures long life and lasting beauty.
8. Safety door — cuts off all power and turns off the source of heat when ever the door is opened during the cycle. New Safety Switch — re-lint dries, every day.
9. Quiet operation — the result of Maytag quality construction.

Faibus Promises Teachers Money

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Gov. Orval E. Faibus, in a letter has told 18,000 Arkansas school teachers that they will get a pay raise of at least $1,000 in the next biennium if he is re-elected.

Faibus' letter, mailed by his campaign headquarters, said the raise could be as much as $1,500.

Faibus has agreed with public school officials that 60 per cent of all future revenues over $127 million will go to schools.

"I have studied the details of the Arkansas Education Association's legislative program and it is my belief that the recommendations are reasonable and attainable," Faibus wrote.

Rules Gops Can't Name Democrats

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett ruled Wednesday that Republicans cannot designate Democrats as clerks, judges or sheriffs of elections.

He also ruled that unless a county has "avowed Republicans living in the voting precinct, then the Republican member of the county election commission would not have any right to designate any judge or clerk."

This drew a sharp reaction from Tom Eisele, campaign manager for Winthrop Rockefeller, GOP candidate for governor.

Bennett "has gone out of his way" to "devise a method by which" Republicans "will be denied the right to name a judge and a clerk for each voting box."

Eisele said Bennett was using his power to guarantee "that the election will not be fair."

The ruling went to the two Democratic members of the three-member election commission in Grant County: A. R. McKenzie and Dalton V. Walker.

President in Boost for RFK Drive

By KARL R. BAUMAN

NEW YORK (AP) - President Johnson took Robert F. Kennedy in tow today in an effort to boost the former attorney general's chances of winning a Senate seat from New York.

Obviously satisfied with his own political prospects in the Empire State, Johnson planned to share day-long campaigning with Kennedy.

Kennedy will be with Johnson when the President makes a flying swing into Upstate New York for speeches in Rochester and Buffalo.

Then, back in New York City, the schedule calls for a motorcade with Johnson and Kennedy in sections of Brooklyn, with heavy Jewish and Italian populations.

And at night, Johnson and Kennedy will be together again when the President speaks before a Madison Square Garden rally of the New York Liberal party.

Even Kennedy's most active supporters concede that he faces a tough fight in his efforts to unseat Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., in the November election.

Keating supporters insist the incumbent is ahead at present.

Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, who is expecting her ninth child in November, were at LaGuardia Airport Wednesday when Johnson arrived after speeches in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

After Johnson reached his hotel, he conferred with Kennedy, and later they visited Mrs. John F. Kennedy in her new duplex apartment on Fifth Avenue.

But Johnson had to call off plans to make some video tapes with Kennedy for use in Kennedy's campaign because of the President's hoarse voice resulting from his recent strenuous 15-state, 10,000-mile Western campaign tour.

Johnson hit the campaign trail again today after a major foreign policy speech Wednesday night at the annual dinner of the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation.

Johnson said this country is, and will remain, the strongest nation on earth, and will always be ready to defend freedom. He said strength and courage are essential to a sound foreign policy, but likened them to the fuel of an airplane.

"You can't go without it," he said. "But neither would it take you where you want to go. For that you need a sense of direction, caution in the cockpit, and an experienced pilot."

Implying that he was the experienced pilot, Johnson told the audience of about 2,500 to "beware of those who come with simple slogans. Theirs is the path of peril and not of peace."

JETS' POWER—Matt Snell is going to be one of the great running backs according to New York Jets head coach Weeb Ewbank (inset).

Lovely autumn weather invites a leisurely outing to enjoy the scenery either by boat or car. Lightweight plastic containers keep home-prepared food and beverages at proper serving temperature. Containers will float if someone slips up on the handling aboard.

POWER CONES: Resembling grounded satellite nose cones, great underground generators stand ready to generate hydroelectric power from the rushing waters of the Snowy River, far above.

shrouded in national security, and so far out of the experience of ordinary voters that most of them can't understand or visualize all that's involved.

As for the needling business, without which a campaign would be no campaign, Nixon and Kennedy needed each other and so do Johnson and Goldwater. Nixon and Kennedy were a little clumsy at it. So are Johnson and Goldwater.

Goldwater came up with an idea: He'd cut taxes 25 per cent at the rate of 5 per cent a year but he had to attach a couple of ifs to it: If Congress approved and if the budget was balanced each year.

No one can predict what shape the budget will be in five years in a row. This suggestion didn't raise sparks and Goldwater doesn't mention it much if at all anymore.

Johnson, on the other hand, has been trying to play it cool, making practically no promises he didn't make before the campaign began. Since he's out front in the polls — or has been until now — he seems to be coasting.

But as this is written early today — just a few hours after the news of Jenkins' arrest broke — there's no telling what's going to happen in the campaign or to it.

Nixon and Goldwater faced the same problem: Trying to pull the conservative and liberal wings of the Republican party together long enough to vote for them since a Republican needs all the party votes he can get to win.

In 1960 Kennedy had to criticize the Eisenhower administration — in order to say he could do better — without criticizing the highly popular President Eisenhower. If he had hit Eisenhower, it might have cost him the election.

Johnson, having watched a number of liberal Republicans split off from the conservative Goldwater, has been cwoing

Nearly 700,000 Arkansas Voters

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Reports of poll taxes sold in 70 counties show 688,000 persons eligible to vote in the Nov. 3 general election.

The unreported counties are Clark, Clay, Miller, Van Buren and Washington.

These counties reported Wednesday: Pope, 9,902 this year and 8,674 last year; St. Francis, 9,558 and 8,553; Sebastian, 27,273 and 24,106; Fulton, 3,450 and 3,595.

Fullong was only the fourth county that did not have an increase in poll taxes sales.

It would be possible to fish in the state of Arkansas every day in the year and never fish twice in the same body of water.

Campaign Boring in Many Ways

By JAMES MARLOW
AP New Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1964 presidential campaign, boring in many ways up till now, isn't altogether different from the 1960 race of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

But two things make it unique in recent American history: 1. Sen. Barry Goldwater's repeated charge that "scandal" hovers over the White House, although he offered no proof, and his preachments on the need for morality in government. Voters haven't heard that for a long time.

And then Wednesday night, it was learned that Walter W. Jenkins, an aide to President Johnson for many years, was twice arrested on a morals charge. He resigned.

2. This year's election will decide the direction of the government for years to come, since Johnson wants continuation of big government, with new programs as he thinks they're needed. Goldwater wants smaller government.

Because of this No. 2 problem the 1964 campaign, unlike that of 1960, is not strictly a personality contest. There is a real issue and a real difference from the Nixon-Kennedy contest.

There was no basic difference between them on domestic or foreign affairs or the kind of government needed. They didn't offer to change it but to improve it.

So the main question of the voters then was: Which of the two men could run the government better? In 1960 Nixon and Kennedy wrangled over their ideas on how to defend the off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu from Red Chinese attack.

This was a pretty empty dispute, as time proved, because the problem of defending the islands has never arisen since 1960. It was an issue which hardly caught fire: the islands were too far off for voters to visualize the problem.

Something like that is happening now in the dispute between Johnson and Goldwater over whether the NATO commander — or the President alone — should have control over the use of "conventional" atomic weapons. This is a complicated subject,

Answers on Situation in Viet Nam

Editor's Note — Viet Nam's future and what the United States can do about it have become an issue in the United States and a problem affecting U.S. relations with allies. Underlying elements of the situation can be lost in day-to-day dispatches. Here is an effort to clarify basic questions. Answers are based on the best available information, gathered by Malcolm W. Browne, chief AP correspondent in Saigon, and William L. Ryan, AP special correspondent. Another installment will appear Thursday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Q. How did the Viet Nam situation come about?

A. The Indochina states — Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia — were a French colony. When the wartime Japanese occupation ended, Communist Ho Chi Minh proclaimed a republic in 1945. Later he mounted a guerrilla war, with Soviet and Chinese aid, against France. When the French jungle fortress of Dien Bin Phu fell in the north, it was the end for France.

A Geneva conference partitioned Viet Nam at the 17th Parallel into Communist North and non-Communist South Laos, and Cambodia also became independent.

A referendum in South Viet Nam deposed Emperor Bao Dai. Ngo Dinh Diem became chief of state. Later he proclaimed a republic with himself as president.

Q. Where did the Communist guerrillas come from?

A. Many stayed in the South after partition. Many went South with a flood of refugees. Communists were strong in rural areas as long as 10 years ago.

Q. What kind of war is it today?

A. Nightmarish, with no front, no rear against an elusive enemy difficult to identify. The Viet Cong hit and hide, raid and ambush, infiltrate and terrorize, propagandize and cajole peasants, constantly recruit manpower. The Viet Cong fights in jungles, marshes, rice paddies, villages. It is a political as well as military struggle, a contest for popular support.

Q. How did the United States get involved?

A. The fall of the French made South Viet Nam a dangerous vacuum in U.S. eyes. An American program of advising South Viet Nam, though on a small scale, began quickly with the object of keeping Southeast Asia out of Communist hands.

Q. What administration started this?

A. In 1954 President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent Ngo Dinh Diem a letter pledging U.S. efforts to help stabilize his government as a "viable state capable of resisting attempted subversion or aggression through military means." Diem visited the United States in 1957 and Eisenhower pledged continued aid against the Communists.

Q. Was the policy continued in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations?

A. Yes. But in 1961 the situation changed. Under North Viet Nam sponsorship, a "National Liberation Front of South Viet Nam" stepped up pressure on the Saigon government. U.S. aid personnel had been in modest numbers until then.

Q. What is the Viet Cong?

A. It's the name the South gives to the guerrillas, implying derision. Reliable estimates place its main fighting force at 34,000, supported by 80,000 armed regional guerrillas who fight at times and also serve as labor or support forces.

Q. How much territory does the Viet Cong control?

A. It almost wholly controls the rich, food-producing Ca Mau Peninsula in the south, claims complete control of 77 of South Viet Nam's 237 administrative districts.

In other areas, by night, the Saigon government controls little. In the 160 districts where the Viet Cong does not claim full control, about 320 Red agitation-propaganda teams are working constantly.

Q. Why does the Viet Cong fight?

A. The Communist propaganda is effective, picturing the enemy as foreigners and puppets of foreigners. When that fails, there are such methods as coercion and terror. The ordinary Viet Cong irregular is concerned with his crops, works with guerrillas only when a local leader orders or when government forces raid his village.

Q. How about government counterpropaganda?

A. It is weak. Opposing the 320 Communist propaganda teams are only 20 government information units. Many of these people do not know how to live with rural people and even resist doing so. A team leader gets no more pay than a competent housemaid in Saigon.

Q. What about Viet Cong losses? Have they been heavy?

A. Yes. Estimates run to more than 10,000 casualties in the last six months. But over-all Viet Cong strength is reported by U.S. intelligence to have grown by 7,000 since May, meaning 17,000 must have been recruited.

Infiltration continues from the Red North. Viet Cong firepower grows steadily. Some material is captured from government forces, some of it is Communist bloc equipment.

Q. Isn't the government side far better armed and equipped?

A. Yes. The Viet Cong do not use planes, helicopters and modern arms. But the Viet Cong hit and run, stage elaborate ambushes, fade into holes.

Q. What's the Saigon government's manpower situation?

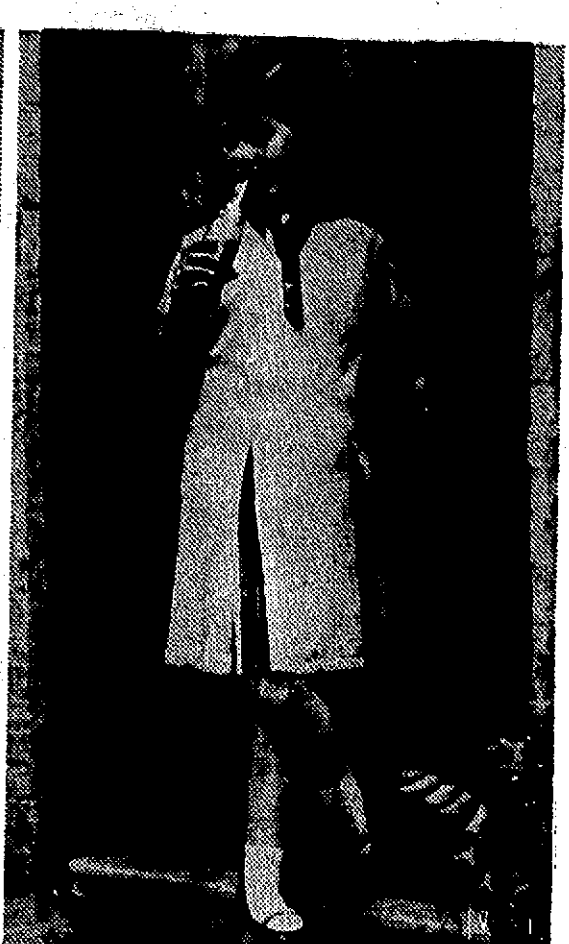

A. About 200,000 regulars, about 200,000 paramilitary forces.

Q. What about U.S. forces?

A. In December 1961 there were 1,000 U.S. military personnel. By the end of 1963 this had risen to 15,500. This month it is Little girls who are overweight can look as chic as their slim sisters in clothes especially designed for the chubby figure. The blouse on the left, a season favorite, is shown in man-tailored gray flannel, with Eton collar, soft tie and pressed pleated skirt. Navy knit (center) shaped for special sizing of the chubbier child's figure, has contrast color on collar edging, dickey and tie. A piquant placement of stripes (right) lends flair to the olive fabric A-line with multicolored insets at the V-neck and inverted pleats. These are L. Gidding designs.

The basic black party dress needs help from its wearer. The model here starts with a shampoo so her hair will be at its sparkling best. For best results when setting hair, especially fine hair, blot moisture (left) from hair with two linen towels. The helps bring out the natural sheen. Just before leaving, make a last-minute check of make-up, hair-do and clothes to see that all is neat. Often an added touch of lipstick or rouge is called for.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new movies—

"The Outrage" is more perplexing than outrageous. It poses the age-old inquiry: What is, truth? The only answer is provided by a con man: "People see what they want to see and they say what they want to hear."

Like "The Magnificent Seven," "The Outrage" transforms a classic Japanese film — was also a Broadway play — to a Western setting. But something was lost in the translation of Kurosawa's great "Rashomon"; somehow the art doesn't register amid the gunfighters as it did with the samurai.

Three lone figures gather in a rainstorm at a broken-down railroad station — a disheartened preacher, a garrulous charlatan, an idealistic prospector. Together they relate the scandal of a small Western town.

A trial has been held. A Mexican bandit was accused of the rape of a woman and the murder of her husband. But the testimony of the bandit, the woman and the dying words of her husband provide three versions of what happened.

Then the prospector confesses he saw the whole thing, and it was entirely different from what the other three said. Paul Newman, Claire Bloom and Laurence Harvey perform above and beyond the call of duty in enacting their charade four times.

Edward G. Robinson, William Shatner and Howard da Silva are fine as the narrators, especially Robinson as the con man. His performance might well draw an Academy Award that is long overdue.

Samuel Goldwyn Jr. attempted with "The Young Lovers" something his father never did — to direct as well as produce a motion picture. The results indicate that young Sammy may have done well to deviate from the paternal pattern.

That does not mean that "The Young Lovers" is an unalloyed success. It is likely that the over-40 audience may object to its casual approach to what was once called moral values. Though the film is by no means immoral, its approach seems too sophisticated.

Goldwyn Jr. is to be commended for attempting that rare screen commodity, the love story. It is a tale of the romance and torment of two college students, one a somewhat inhibited beauty, the other an aimless artist. Their situation seems real, and so do the collegiate surroundings.

Where "The Young Lovers" never explored:

fails to achieve reality in the characters. The leads are played with earnestness by Peter Fonda and Sharon Hugueney, but they never have dimension. Their joys, angers and frustrations are carefully delineated, but the motivations are

Youths Deal Out Tough Justice

By DAN MCNULTY
HINSDALE, Ill. (AP) — Juvenile delinquents in this suburb of Chicago are learning fast that a jury of fellow teen-agers can be tougher than adult justice.

Nevertheless, every young offender, given the chance, has chosen the Youth Jury for sentencing since its inception in Hinsdale seven months ago.

By doing so, offenders can make restitution without getting a police record.

The punishments meted out by the Youth Jury are designed to induce perspiration and contribution. They usually consist of menial but constructive work — such as mowing lawns, scrubbing walls, cleaning streets or working as an orderly in a hospital or sanitarium.

"We think it's really helping. Our acts of vandalism are going down," says police Sgt. John Beukema, Hinsdale youth officer.

Magistrate Richard R. Brown attributes the success of the Youth Jury to the enthusiasm of the youngsters and community cooperation.

"It's basically self-rule. The youngsters seem to be more adept at punishing their own and more adept at accepting punishment from their own," Brown explained.

The jury does not rule on guilt or innocence. It passes sentences in cases presented to it. The sentences themselves can be increased or tempered by Brown.

The Youth Jury was proposed by a Hinsdale high school student, Greg Mertz, 17, who read about a similar system in Jacksonville, Fla. Officials of Hinsdale, a community of 16,000 west of Chicago, agreed to give it a try.

Sgt. Beukema decides which cases should go before the Youth Jury after analyzing the past record of the offender and holding a long interview with his parents.

The offenses involved include vandalism, shoplifting, petty theft and traffic violations.

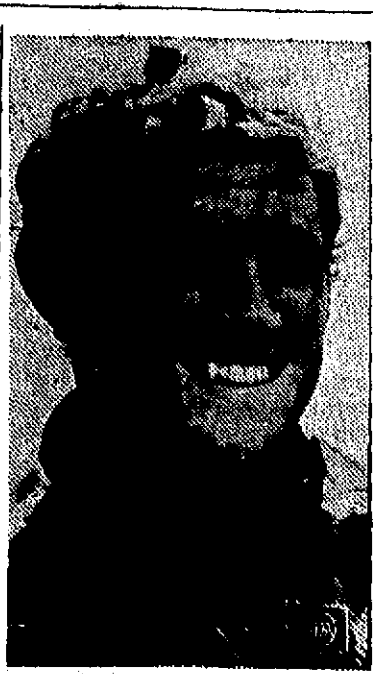

Good Thing She Investigated

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Mrs. Hazel Glass Dunford, 70, was watching the World Series on television Monday when she heard a strange noise across the street.

She got up to look out the window just as a tractor-trailer slammed into her home. The right front wheel crushed the chair in which she had been sitting. Authorities said a brake failure allowed the truck to coast away from a loading ramp across the street.

Johnson will fly back to the White House Thursday night, but will hit the campaign trail again Friday when he goes to Ohio for speeches in Cincinnati and Dayton. After that, he heads for his home state of Texas for a series of speeches.

Except for Ohio, the five states Johnson will visit this week went Democratic in 1960. The President spent Tuesday at the White House after returning early in the morning from a 10,000-mile Western campaign trip.

Bennett Irked by Election Probe Group

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett said Tuesday that "Hitler-like smears" with scattergun allegations mark the Election Research Council's probe of election irregularities in Arkansas.

G. Thomas Eisele, campaign manager for Republican gubernatorial candidate Winthrop Rockefeller, called Bennett's charge a response to the fact that the council has struck a "raw nerve."

Bennett said John Haley, chairman of the council, and Eisele have accused the 13,200 election officials in Arkansas of being "either ignorant or crooks."

Eisele said most election commissioners are honest, but Bennett is trying to divert attention from the fact that election procedures in many counties are deplorable.

Both Haley and Eisele, attorneys, head what they call separate investigations of election practices.

Bennett said the council is financed by Rockefeller.

"There could be no doubt that it is financed by the Republican candidate for governor," Bennett said.

Haley's group bills itself as non-partisan. He says its aim is toward recodification of election laws.

Bennett said Haley was quoted from information "that had to come from the (GOP) candidate's headquarters."

In a statement released to newsmen, Bennett said allegations of widespread voting fraud made by the council are "outrageous," "politically inspired accusations," and were made by a "few self-appointed election experts."

Bennett said the charges had damaged Gov. Orval E. Faubus "beyond redemption."

Eisele said Monday that Faubus could win the Nov. 3 election with fraudulent votes unless something is done to curb irregularities like those that have happened in the past.

The council released some letters Tuesday which indicated some persons who once lived in Arkansas but had moved away continued to vote in Arkansas and in the state in which they had their new residence.

One of the writers acknowledged that his action was "illegal, of course," but said there were people in Arkansas for whom he wanted to vote.

On another front of the voting issue, Dr. H. D. Luck of Arkadelphia charged that "machine politicians" are spreading unfounded rumors about Amendment 54.

The amendment would replace the annual poll tax system registration method in Arkansas with a permanent registration system.

Luck is chairman of a group pushing for passage of Amendment 54.

President Will Remain Idle Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson leaves today on a two-day campaign swing into New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

The first speech of his trip was scheduled for a shopping center near the airport at Teterboro, N.J. From there, he flies to the Wilkes-Barre — Scranton airport in Pennsylvania for an early afternoon party rally.

Then he heads for New York, where he will attend a dinner tonight honoring the memory of Alfred E. Smith.

His schedule, as announced by the White House, has no activities listed between 1:45 p.m., when he reaches La Guardia airport, and the 8 p.m. Smith dinner. Presumably, however, he will use the time to get together with various state Democratic leaders.

The President will spend the night at the Waldorf-Astoria, leaving for upstate New York early Thursday for speeches in Rochester and Buffalo. He will return to New York City for an appearance at a Brooklyn rally and a speech Thursday night at a Liberal party rally.

The Liberal party, which exists only in New York, has endorsed Johnson.

Johnson will fly back to the White House Thursday night, but will hit the campaign trail again Friday when he goes to Ohio for speeches in Cincinnati and Dayton. After that, he heads for his home state of Texas for a series of speeches.

Except for Ohio, the five states Johnson will visit this week went Democratic in 1960. The President spent Tuesday at the White House after returning early in the morning from a 10,000-mile Western campaign trip.

Mrs. Johnson Will Visit Arkansas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will visit Fort Smith and Little Rock on Oct. 27 as part of a two-day, three-state whistle stop campaign trip by airplane.

On Oct. 27, the First Lady will appear at a ceremony at Belle Point National Park, a new historic site in downtown Fort Smith.

She will fly to Little Rock for a reception in MacArthur Park, which is the center of an urban renewal project. She will turn the first shovel of dirt for a new 136-unit Arkansas teachers retirement home.

Mrs. Johnson will visit Beaumont, Tyler and San Angelo in Texas on Oct. 26 and will go to McAlester and Tulsa in Oklahoma on the 27th before coming to Arkansas.

Three wives of cabinet members will accompany her. They are Mrs. Robert S. McNamara, wife of the secretary of defense; Mrs. W. Willard Wirtz, wife of the secretary of labor; and Mrs. Orville L. Freeman, wife of the secretary of agriculture.

Also with Mrs. Johnson will be Mrs. J. William Fulbright and Mrs. John L. McClellan, wives of the Arkansas senators, and Mrs. Jack Carnes, of Camden, state Democratic national committeewoman.

Mrs. Johnson will fly from Little Rock to Washington.

She expects to go to New York City with the President for his appearance in Madison Square Garden this Thursday night. She will go to Austin Friday to accept an alumni award from the University of Texas.

The next two days she will campaign with the President in Texas.

He Is 74 Today

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is 74 years old today.

Eisenhower, with a grin and a glance at Tuesday's sunny skies, told newsmen, "If the sun keeps this way, I guess I'll get in a few holes of golf."

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Viewers tuned to CBS for the past couple of nights could get the impression that this is Ed Wynn Week.

That fine actor and comedian who has passed his 78th birthday appeared on Monday night playing the serious role of an 86-year-old inmate of a home for the aged in "Slattery's People."

Tuesday night he was having a fine time committing mayhem on a defenseless comedy sketch in the company of Red Skelton. Wynn, with his droll face and hesitant manner, was dandy in both appearances but, for this long-time Wynn fan, the Skelton show was the greater treat.

Red, a wonderful clown also, is now in his 14th year as a television star. The way he triumphs over his usually shoddy material is a weekly demonstration of his enormous talents. He and Wynn were great together.

Carol Burnett, who seemed to be fortune's favorite last spring is running into some bad breaks.

Back and neck injuries, originally suffered five years ago and aggravated by a recent taxi accident, will put her in traction in a hospital for an indefinite period starting Monday.

She will tape her Friday night part in CBS's "The Entertainers," and give her final stage performance in "Fade Out, Fade In" on Saturday.

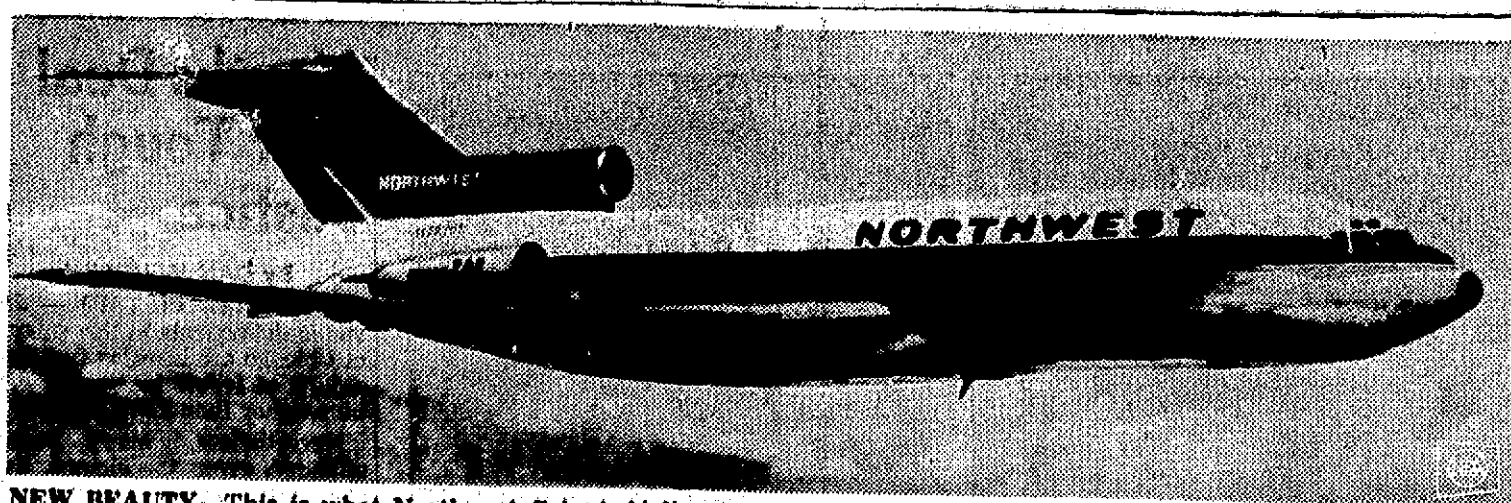

Goes Long Way to Save Tickets

Claude Morris goes a long way to save his football tickets — even to the state crime laboratory.

When fire destroyed the Duncan Manufacturing and Equipment Co. last week, where Morris is manager, it also destroyed four tickets and badly charred 20 others to this weekend's Auburn-Georgia Tech game in Birmingham.

Morris sent the 20 charred bits to the state toxicologist.

Tests were used to determine the seat numbers and today the city is preparing duplicate tickets for Morris.

NEW BEAUTY—This is what Northwest Orient Airlines' new three-engined Boeing 727 will look like when it goes into operation. It will carry 93 passengers and cruise at 600 miles per hour.

"DEAR ABBY"

HE'S HAVING A BALL!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: Last year we moved from the country to the city so our children could go to the best schools, study with the best music teachers and get all the cultural advantages of the art museum, symphony, ballet and so forth. Well, the children haven't learned much, but their father has learned plenty. Every Saturday night I have to send my brother down to the burlesque house to drag my husband home. He has gone hog wild. He signed up for a course in ballroom dancing and he goes by himself every Monday night and I don't see him again until after work on Tuesday. He says I don't need lessons because all I have to do is "follow." HE needs lessons because he has to "lead." (Is that true?) I suggested moving back to the country and he refused to go. How can I straighten him out?

SORRY WE MOVED

Dear Sorry: I don't know what your man "sowed" in the country, but it wasn't his wild oats, because he appears to be sowing them now. Waltz your overgrown kid back onto the straight and narrow if you have to enlist a marriage counselor or clergyman to help you.

Dear Abby: I am a 15-year-old girl, and people tell me I am cute looking and have a good personality, but I have never had a real date. I think I know why. Boys are afraid to ask me out or come over because my father is a policeman. How can I get boys to date me with this handicap? I am hankering for a date.

DATELESS

Dear Dateless: Only a thief runs when no one pursues. I hope you aren't hankering for dates with boys who fit this description.

Dear Abby: Our son is just 20 and the girl he went steady with for four years is 18. She graduated from high school last June and Jim has had one year of college. They begged us to let them get married in July, saying she would work and they would have an apartment on campus. Her parents agreed to continue her allowance. We consented to their marriage on the condition that they promised not to have a family until Jim graduated from college. Well, they weren't married two months when she announced she's one month pregnant! We are so angry at that stupid girl! Do you think we are justified in asking our son to quit school and go to work? How do other parents handle situations like this?

AMC, Union Reach an Agreement

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP) — Moving toward a strike deadline less than 48 hours away, American Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers had reached agreement or near-agreement today on major economic issues.

But on the No. 1 question they were poles apart. That is: Will their new contract carry forward the auto industry's only profit-sharing plan?

Edward L. Cushman, AMC vice president who proposed and got profit sharing in 61, told newsmen he feels "profit possibly can.

sharing is still dead" so far as any new contract is concerned.

Douglas Fraser, the UAW's American Motors department chief, said: "We think is still alive. We'll know by Thursday midnight."

Economic settlements parallel those in national contracts already reached by the UAW with the automotive big three — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

AMC says the union is demanding the same money package it got from the Big Three plus profit sharing. It also says the union is unwilling to gamble possible wage gains in event of a profitless year.

The UAW as threatened to call out its 25,000 AMC production workers at midnight Thursday if there is no new national contract by that time.

This strike threat came on top of a nationwide walkout a General Motors plants 20 days ago, which still has the world's No. 1 automaker shut down. The strike stems from local-level issues.

20 Copperheads Found in Building

RADFORD, Va. (AP)—Demolition workers backed off when they uncovered a nest of about 20 poisonous copperhead snakes in a building they were tearing down Monday. The fire department came to the rescue and burned the building down.

Over 65? Need Medical Care? Can't Afford It?

There is a Health Opportunity Program for the Elderly available now, made possible by the Kerr-Mills Law passed in 1960, and soundly endorsed by your doctor's medical society.

It enables individual states, with federal assistance, to guarantee to every elderly person who can't pay for it the health care he or she requires.

We believe the Kerr-Mills Law is a better program than the proposed Medicare Tax plan. First, the Medicare Tax would pay less than 25% of the total yearly health care costs of the average person over 65!

Second, the Medicare Tax would cover those who don't need it... the wealthy and well-to-do—as well as the 6 out of 10 of our elderly who have private health insurance that pays most or all of their medical bills.

Yet every wage earner would be forced to pay higher taxes for the Medicare Tax plan. That's right, extra money for a plan that is not needed.

The Kerr-Mills Law—a true Health Opportunity Program for the Elderly—is much more fair. The cost comes out of the taxes we already pay. And it provides help to those who need help.

For more information, contact your state or local Medical Society.

Strike End Soon Won't Hurt Nation

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's economy — outside General Motors itself — should be little hurt if the big auto company's strike ends soon.

If work resumes in another week or so, G. M. would push hard to speed production and get new model cars to dealers now hurting and worried. The company's suppliers, including the steel mills, would also work at top speed to send parts and materials.

A bubble in the industrial production index may show up on the chart of current activity. But most economic forecasters expect lost time to be made up in November and December at the latest — all this, of course, if the strike ends shortly.

This is probably why the administration and the stock market have been taking the strike fairly calmly.

Their optimism is based on the union-management settlement of national issues and the belief that troublesome local plant squabbles must yield to compromise soon — the sooner the better for the general economy.

If the strike doesn't end soon there could be real scars. The reason this one company's labor troubles are so important to the economy is this: It not only is by far the largest firm in a basic industry, it is the biggest manufacturer in the nation. Together with its own output, and that of the suppliers of parts and the providers of steel and other materials, GM commands a sizable share of industrial activity — too big to be ignored.

Worse, any real threat of a prolonged work stoppage would ripple out to many other phases of business activity — such as transportation and merchants who cater to laid-off workers.

Since the strike, GM dealers report losing some sales because of delayed delivery. But their competitors insist their sales continue to boom.

Steel production also holds high. The mills have a nice backlog of orders to keep them busy; orders from many other industries besides the auto firms. Steel's big worry just now is the slowdown in orders from, or instructions to hold up shipments to, GM plants and parts suppliers. Steelmen still

Religious Plant Doesn't Use the Title

By ALAN WALKER

CALLOW END, England (AP) — "Printer's devil" is the common term for a press apprentice, but the title is never used at nearby Stanbrook Abbey. There gentle nuns work with ink and hot lead to produce some of the most beautiful books and broadsheets in Britain.

Before printing was invented, the "scriptorium" of an abbey was a busy place. There manuscripts were copied, for distribution mainly among the clergy.

Now Stanbrook's presses form the scriptorium's modern equivalent. Books of a religious nature are printed with pains-believe that the shipment pressure will be resumed once the local GM plant issues are cleared.

All this optimism, however, doesn't hide a deeper worry. This is the fear in some quarters that the national auto compact will set a pattern for labor demands in other industries less favored by record profits to absorb the rise in production costs.

Steel itself is on notice that next spring its union will press for big gains. Steel executives are doubly warning that price increases really are needed now and would be imperative if production costs rise.

This inflation threat is still just a conversation piece. But it is causing more and more uneasiness.

taking care on handmade paper. Many are finished by hand illumination in gold and brightly colored inks.

The abbey was founded in 1625 and its printing history dates from 1876, when Brother Laurence Shepherd of the Order of Saint Benedict bought a small press and employed a local printer to teach him how to run it.

From then on, says the present printer, "We have passed the craft on from generation to generation, with occasional help from outside."

Now there are six presses, including the original one, and seven nuns running them. If with mechanical equipment seven nuns running them. If anything serious goes wrong with mechanical equipment, expert workmen are allowed into the cloistered abbey to make repairs.

However, "typographical advice is spoken to the printer through a grill because technically no men are allowed in. No visitors may enter the press room except the essential work men.

The spokesman's name can not be revealed. "Our custom is to remain anonymous," a reporter was told. "We are strictly enclosed, behind grills — the strictest of all, known as Papal Enclosure."

The printer entered the Benedictine order in 1941. "I had never printed before and I didn't know anything about it," she said. "But I always loved books and collected first editions — and beautiful bindings when I could afford them."

The press prints fine editions of poetry, medieval spiritual writings, histories of the Church fathers and plainer editions of liturgical books.

Many books are available only to those inside the order but the more secular works can be bought commercially. So can Christmas cards.

"We print for our own bread and butter," the printer said. Some books are sold through rare book dealers, mainly in London. Other purchasers hear about the press and write for lists. Still others form a large list of permanent subscribers to the press's publications.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the boulevard—

Hollywood has its private eyes, as do television and the paperback. But alas, there isn't much similarity between the real kind and the Philip Marlowes and the Sam Spades. Take the gentlemen who run the imposing-sounding Central Bureau of Investigation, oldest detective agency on Hollywood Boulevard. Founded 35 years ago, it was recently sold by Chris Ugas, who became director of public safety for Omaha. The new owners are Russell Jones and Bud Meyerkamp, who previously had operated the local office of a national detective agency. They discussed their work in their neat, second-floor office, filled with electronic gear, tools of the modern private investigator.

"Much of our work is giving polygraph tests," said Russell, a dark-haired, well-spoken man. "We give lie-detector tests for smaller police departments which don't have their own equipment, for employment screening in bonded jobs such as delivering wholesale jewelry, for attorneys who want to find out if their clients are telling the truth, and for companies seeking to solve pilferage."

"The rest of our work consists of industrial undercover work and civil and domestic investigations," said Meyerkamp, stocky and blond. "We employ seven full-time help and several part-time."

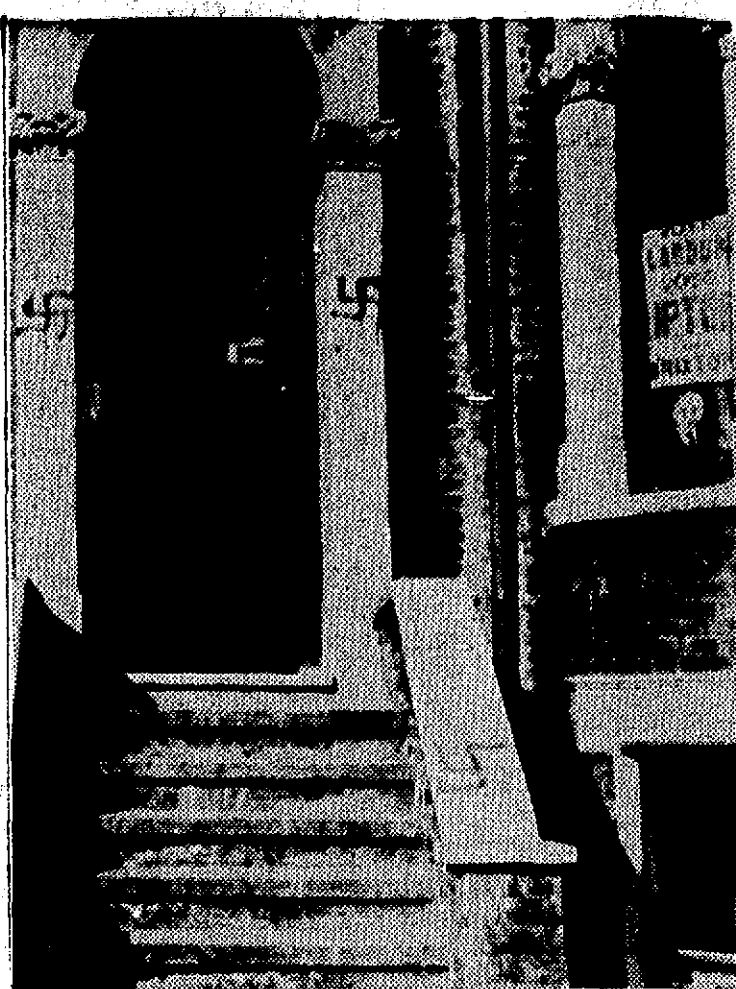

Both smiled when asked how their work compares to their fictional counterparts.

"I'm afraid we don't encounter much of the Peter Gunn-77 Sunset Strip stuff," said Jones. "About the only real danger we might face is from irate husbands."

"Oh, there may be times when you're making an arrest of a couple of big bruisers in a lonely spot at 2 in the morning; then you might feel a bit apprehensive. We make arrests just as anyone else can: a citizen's arrest. We don't carry guns since everyone is forbidden to carry concealed weapons, and we'd feel pretty silly with a pistol strapped outside our coats."

"Once in a while, when we're checking on a bail bond case, we might carry a pistol in the car. But we never have to use it."

"Danger?" added Meyerkamp. "This may sound incongruous, but the greatest danger we face is in the Los Angeles traffic. When you're tailing another car you've got to

Background in the Viet Nam Crisis

Editor's Note — This is the second of two installments of questions and answers on the background of the Viet Nam crisis. Answers are based on available information gathered by William L. Ryan, AP special correspondent, and Malcolm W. Browne, chief AP correspondent at Saigon.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Q. Is the attempt to hold back the Communists in South Viet Nam being stepped up?

A. The number of U. S. advisers is increasing. Special Forces operating in small units throughout South Viet Nam have been beefed up 50 per cent. About 1,000 of these tough Americans in about 60 teams are on the job. Civilian economic advisers are being increased.

More support goes to the "pacification" program, an attempt to win rural people by bringing economic, technical, educational and other aid to gain their confidence.

Q. What about the hamlet program?

A. These were called "strategic hamlets" by the Diem regime, which started them. Now they are "new life hamlets."

Often they are fortified with right stay with them. Let three cars intervene, and you have to scramble to catch up. That can be quite hazardous."

And what of the legendary blondes who throw themselves at private eyes?

Meyerkamp shook his head sadly.

"Most of those who can afford to hire a private investigator are mature and not highly attractive," he said.

Actress Gets Divorce

bamboo-spike fences, behind which are armed local militia. The system under Diem aroused rural resentment.

Government troops often forced villagers from their homes, burned villages, made people live in the fenced-in compounds. Force is no longer used, and other aspects are changed, but there is still little indication of over-all improvement in the hamlet effort.

Q. Why does the Saigon government have so much political trouble?

A. A variety of reasons. Diem's government was widely criticized as having a dictatorial attitude. The army was full of rivalries and corruption, lacked initiative. Troops and officers often showed little will to fight or pursue the enemy. Unrest in the cities was widespread.

Q. Doesn't South Viet Nam claim to stand for democracy?

A. Yes, but it's a distant goal. A military coup overthrew the Diem regime last November.

A government under Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh floundered and in turn was overthrown by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh. This remained essentially a military dictatorship.

Khanh called himself president, later adopted the title of premier. Minh now is titular chief of state.

The only political party of any significance, the Dai Viet, with a nanticonical, anti-Communist background, plays little part in today's government.

Q. Did the coups help matters?

A. At first, Buddhist resistance to Diem helped produce his downfall. This same volatile factor threatens Khanh although he is Buddhist.

Q. From all this, it seems the United States has a tiger by the tail. What are the alternatives?

A. None are pleasant.

(1) The United States could consider Red China and North Viet Nam the root of the trouble and extend the war in an effort to end outside Viet Cong support. This might cause general war in Asia. (2) The United States could agree to neutralization of South Viet Nam. This would be viewed by many as a step toward Communist control.

(3) The United States can continue as it is, looking forward to a long, hard struggle.

Q. Is the United States getting help from its allies?

A. Washington asked 25 nations to help. About 10 help with small training missions or economic aid, but the United States carries practically all the burden.

Q. What does it cost?

A. At the rate of about $600 million annually since 1961, but likely to be $600 million in 1964 or at times of aid. From all auses, the United States lost 34 dead, about 2,000 wounded as of Oct. 1.

Q. If U. S. forces are only advisers, why so many casualties?

A. The word "combat" is voided but Americans are in combat often. There is a fiction that U. S. pilots fly planes only as advisers, but any Vietnamese board often will be along just for the ride.

Q. Why did North Viet Nam attack U. S. warships in the Tonkin Gulf?

A. Few believe it would have happened without Red Chinese approval. The guessing is that it was a test of both U. S. and Soviet reaction. Both Red China and North Viet Nam are feuding with the Soviet Communists.

Q. Is there a danger Viet Nam will be another Korea?

A. U. S. officials say pouring in hundreds of thousands of U. S. troops — as in Korea — would be no solution and the United States doesn't plan to do so.

Q. What about the question of extending the war to the North?

A. Premier Khanh advocated it, then toned down the suggestion. Washington never firmly ruled out the idea publicly, although U. S. authorities said it would not be policy to extend the war.

Q. Can Premier Khanh hang on in the face of all the odds?

A. He says he'll turn over power to a civilian national council by Oct. 27, as a step toward a more democratic regime. But South Viet Nam's chronic unbalance leaves the success of this project doubtful.

Q. Can the struggle be won?

A. The outlook at the moment is gloomy. Allegiance of the rural people is a key to victory but that requires large-scale retooling of Saigon politics.

There is widespread fear in the countryside that the Communists are winning, and people tend to flock to a winner's banner.

The government's failures in education, in coping with Red propaganda and in keeping young men from joining the Viet Cong are costly.

There are still official misbehavior and even corruption in local governments.

Q. What's at stake in South Viet Nam?

A. Washington says the outcome will profoundly affect the future of Asia as underdeveloped areas in Africa and Latin America.

President Johnson has said the future of all Southeast Asia is at stake and that the United States must remain determined to stand by Viet Nam.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona says that as president he would invite Dwight D. Eisenhower to head an experts' commission to report on the situation.

Why is Borden's the milk for children?

Because children like its creaminess.

There are almost two cups of cream in every half-gallon of Borden's Milk. Government regulations don't require that much cream. But our biggest customers do. Children prefer the creamy goodness of Borden's Milk. And you'll like the extra glassfuls they drink when you give them the milk they want.

Same Thing Happened in Other Race

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gentlemanly debate on a high plane is the ideal but not the real in a presidential campaign, as this one and some others show.

Tuesday Sen. Barry Goldwater, while being charged with racism in this campaign by 726 fellow-Episcopalians, was criticizing President Johnson's religious practices.

He said Johnson's visiting "church after church and city after city" on Sundays was a "political travesty of the Lord's day."

This is the latest in a hardly gentle list of criticisms Goldwater has dumped on Johnson. The President has made mostly indirect cracks at his rival.

American voters may have forgotten it, because of all that has happened since then, but they watched pretty much the same thing in the 1960 race between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Some of the very words those two men used against each other four years ago have popped up again.

Nixon said Kennedy was a "deadly risk" and an "immature, rash, impulsive man" making dangerous statements. And he compared Kennedy's promises to a "carnival confidence man selling... quack medicine to an unsuspecting public."

Kennedy wasn't any kinder to Nixon.

He suggested "someone had better cut the cards" before Nixon dealt. And he pictured Nixon as a baleful kind of individual whose political "career has often seemed to show charity toward none and malice toward all."

Nixon, to Kennedy, was the "trigger-happy" leader of a "wrecking crew."

Democrats this year, and some Republicans before the campaign began, applied "impulsive" and "trigger happy" to Goldwater, who all through this campaign has been insisting he is neither and this week he told NBC:

"I think the repetition of the outright lie that I am trigger-happy has hurt me more than anything. That's been the most damaging thing I've run into."

Johnson himself hasn't put those tags on Goldwater but when he urged voters to reject the voice of a "raving, ranting demagogue," there was no doubt whom he had in mind.

Even after Goldwater accused the Johnson administration of being "soft on communism," the President refused to be riled into firing back directly. Instead, again without mentioning Goldwater's name, he said:

THE OLD AND THE NEW: Finnish folk dancers like those at left will tour the United States and Canada this fall while modern dance (right) is getting a start in many of Finland's local youth clubs.

"I see... the new and frightening voice of the Republican party is merely trying out this charge at the moment to see if it works."

And this week when Johnson referred to a "plucked banty rooster" it was interpreted as meaning Goldwater.

Before the campaign even began, Goldwater called Johnson a "phony" and "faker."

Candidates Similar in Many Ways

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1964 presidential race will be remembered for more reasons than the monotonous repetition of limited ideas and the fact that the future direction of the country was at stake.

The similarities and contrasts between the candidates, President Johnson and Sen. Barry Goldwater, are enough to fascinate historians and political scientists for years to come.

There's the picture of the two men feeding the public their endless diet of slogans: Johnson preaching "unity" and "morality" and Goldwater intoning about "freedom" and "morality."

While any serious debate about these abstractions is almost totally lacking, the crowds which turn out for both men cheer and applaud although it's unclear whether they're approving to men, their ideas or what they represent.

There have been no surprises in the campaign. The basic difference in the philosophy of the candidates on the government they say is needed was long known and clearly established before the campaign began.

In this growing society, which both men are looking at, Johnson thinks government needs to be big to meet its responsibilities while Goldwater wants it smaller, with its responsibilities far more limited and some eliminated.

There's a difference even in the way they get their ideas out. If there had been no news conferences, Johnson probably would have thought them up. He uses them indoors and outdoors, particularly outdoors in a new twist, leading newsmen and beagles in a fast walk while answering questions.

Goldwater, who in the past sometime talked too fast when he talked off the cuff, relies now mostly on written speeches and avoids news conferences. He hasn't had one since August.

Last week when he addressed editors here he refused to answer their questions, saying it wouldn't be fair since he didn't let their reporters ask him questions.

The two men disagree just as much on how to handle foreign policy as they do on the problems at home.

Goldwater has been campaigning since August. Actually, counting the primaries earlier in 1964, he's been campaigning all year. Johnson made a number of so-called non-political trips that served his political purposes.

Nevertheless, he didn't hit the road all-out until recently, a delay which may be largely due to his respect for the political sagacity of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He remembers that in the 1940 campaign, Roosevelt didn't go on the road until about three weeks before the election. For whatever his reason, Johnson started a little sooner, but not much sooner.

Johnson, in the tradition of the handshaking American politician, likes to mingle with the Goldwater has used as one of his main themes the charge that scandal hovers over the White House. He said Johnson knows only one thing: "How to acquire fortune and power."

He said the Johnson administration had changed the alleged New Deal formula of spend and spend to "lie and lie."

The 1964 race between President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson was far more subdued and, by comparison, almost in the realm of gallantry. By that time Stevenson had abandoned the wit which so much annoyed Eisenhower in 1952.

But he did try some ridicule, such as remarking he was "willing to believe" Eisenhower didn't "understand what he was saying."

GAMES...Then and Now

The ancient Greeks delighted in a board game called pessi, which Homer says was played in the palace of Odysseus by attendants waiting for the return of the hero of the Trojan War. The game was played on a lined board with five pieces and was popular for centuries among the ancient peoples of the Eastern Mediterranean.

The fun-loving Romans, who are notorious for their vigorous pursuits, often relaxed with a challenging board game in which the players threw dice to move their men through a maze of lines. The first player to clear all 15 of his men through the maze won the game.

The most famous of all modern board games, Monopoly, gives players the means and the chance to corner real estate markets and control millions. Hottest new game this year is a provocative word game called Probe. Each player selects a secret word and the other players try to guess it, letter by letter.

Constitutional Convention Asked

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep. Hardy W. Croxton of Benton County used the 90th birthday of Arkansas' Constitution here Tuesday to appeal again for a constitutional convention.

Croxton, who often has called for a convention to rewrite the state's charter, said the constitution is "negative and restrictive."

The federal constitution is superior to the state's because it has not restricted "man's mind to continually better serve the people," Croxton said.

Representatives of the Young Democrat and Young Republican clubs of Arkansas joined Croxton's call for a constitutional convention.

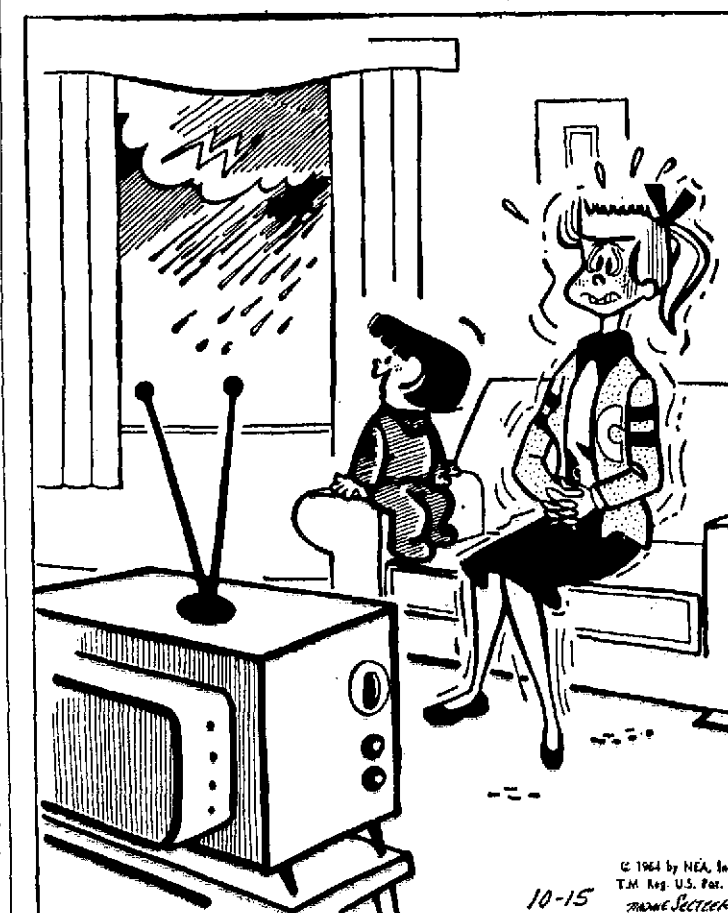

Typewriters at School Stolen

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP)—Police said burglars entered the Carlsbad school system administrative offices Monday and made off with typewriters, adding machines and other office equipment valued at $1,216.

They apparently had a thirst for knowledge, too. A copy of Webster's dictionary was taken.

Governors to Stay Behind Democrats

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Eleven Southern governors say their states will turn back Republican Barry Goldwater's campaign to capture the traditionally Democratic South and will give their votes to President Johnson in next month's election.

An Associated Press survey of the 16 governors attending the 30th annual meeting of the Southern Governors Conference showed that three governors believe Goldwater, the GOP presidential nominee, will carry their states.

One of these was Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, only Republican member of the Southern Governors' Conference. The others were the governors of Mississippi and Louisiana.

Governors of Virginia and Alabama would make no predictions.

Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus, the 17th member of the conference, has not appeared in San Antonio. He said earlier his state would go Democratic.

Late Tuesday, North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford became the fifth Democratic chief of state to tell newsmen that Goldwater is slipping in the South.

Delaware Gov. Elbert N. Carvel told newsmen that Delaware would cast 63 per cent of its vote for President Johnson.

Florida Gov. Farris Bryant and Johnson said earlier that Goldwater's southern support is dwindling.

Connally said he understood President Johnson is trailing in Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Florida, but gaining strength every day.

Race Issue in British Election

LONDON (AP) — "Keep Britain White!" "If You Want a Nigger Neighbor, Vote Labor!" "Stop the Blacks."

Britons see slogans such as these on sootgrimed railroad arches and brick warehouse walls.

They are meant to shock, hurt, humiliate. Like bloody lokes, such sentences have no known authors.

All the responsible leaders of the Conservative, Labor and Liberal parties deplore appeals to race prejudice. The big political figures attack each other on every other issue, but they are doing all they can to keep the race question from generating tension—to keep the genie in the bottle, as one political commentator said.

Yet the race issue, underplayed as it is, could be a big factor in Britain's national election if the voting is close next Thursday.

Britain's version of the white backlash even could deprive one leading political figure of his seat in the House of Commons.

He is Patrick Gordon Walker, 57, who probably will be foreign secretary if the Labor party wins.

Gordon Walker is running in Smethwick, near Birmingham, against Conservative Peter Griffiths, a teacher and a borough alderman.

Many white working class families in Smethwick resent the presence of 4,000 Indians, Pakistanis and West Indian Negroes settled amidst an electorate of 48,000.

Griffiths has been quoted as saying: "Smethwick rejects the idea of a multiracial society."

Apparently this remark did not find favor with Prime Minister Douglas-Home, the Conservative party leader.

Douglas-Home did not repudiate Griffiths. But the prime minister issued a general warning to all Tory candidates that "there must be no racial prejudice among any of us in this country."

The racial issue could be important in other areas. London now has 120,000 West Indian Negroes. In time their political importance could send one of their number to the House of Commons.

Their potential political strength already is felt in such London areas as Brixton, Finsbury Park and suburban Southall. In Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool and many other industrial cities whole sections now are occupied by colored immigrants from the British Commonwealth nations.

Any citizen of the commonwealth or of the Irish Republic can vote in this election if his name as entered on the election register made up a year ago. No one seems to know how many of the 700,000 colored Commonwealth immigrants registered. Until recently these people had tended to think of British politics as "white man's business." But there are signs this attitude is changing.

Jonesboro Bond Issue Approved

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A $1 million bond issue under Act 9 of 1960 was approved by voters here Tuesday, 269-11.

The issue would replace a $1 million issue in 1960, made under Amendment 49 to finance construction of plant facilities for the Crane Co., which makes plumbing fixtures.

The millage under Amendment 49 never was collected because the bond issue was retired through rental payments by Crane for use of the plant.

The Act 9 bonds will make it possible for Jonesboro to issue more bonds under Amendment 49. Act 9 bonds are secured by assets of the plant involved, not by millage.

Meet in Darkness

The Story: Ches Becker, who is helping the kidnaper of Hugo Sandor, reviews his association with the man who calls himself Jay Garth.

XVI

Ches had gone on telling him: "You gotta know something. You try to double-cross me and you'll wind up in the chair. I wrote a letter. I gave it to a good friend, confidential, sealed up tight. If anything happens to me, no matter what—no matter what way I turn up dead—he takes that letter to the cops. You don't know who he is and you can't stop him. He'll do it, then you'll get cooked. So you better play it straight."

"Ches, that's a bit painful to hear, and quite unnecessary, old boy, quite, I assure you. I trust you, so you should trust me as much. In fact, I'll accept any conditions you may choose to lay down. When we collect that money, you'll be holding your rifle. All you need to do, once we're away, is to ask for my automatic and I'll promptly hand it over. You can keep me covered while we split the loot. Then take off your share and cache it, my friend, anywhere you please. You know this country much better than I ever will, so you can hide your half in a place I could never find. Thousands of possibilities, aren't there? At any rate I'd never try. You simply go your way and I go mine, but us considerably richer. Only one thing: as soon as you're clear of me, get that letter back and destroy it—for the sake of your own safety, Ches, because as long as you live, it can implicate you."

Ches knew he was outmatched; Garth was quicker-witted and much too clever for him; and yet on this crucial point Ches was able to trust him. Why? Because the money was less important in Garth's plans than something else.

While Ches kept the boat heading a little east of south, paralleling the shoreline, his crusty hands caressed the wheel with a gentle sadness. He was dreaming of Eva again, the dark-eyed little Spanish girl he had met while he was picking up catch-as-you-can jobs as a stevedore in Tampa, and she was just old enough to begin working as a waitress in Ybor City. It was Eva who had encouraged him to buy a boat to hire to fishing parties. He had found one, already nearly 20 years old, her leing gear antiquated and so many other things in need of fixing that the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries wouldn't grant him a loan. So they had saved their wages week by week had borrowed from friends here and there, and finally he had put down a down payment on her. His first act as her proud owner had been to rename her Eva.

It had ended with crashing suddenness with Eva's death in childbirth, and the little baby boy dead with her.

Last Fourth of July, Sandor had hired his boat for a day's fishing in the Gulf. Ches remembered everyone in that private party: Sandor and his big blonde wife, and the others called Dick and Gail, Allen and Lyn, Bud, and Dede, and another man without a woman. Sam Something. Hadn't they all had a high old time, except during the line squalls they'd run into—line squalls they'd run into—nowhere. Afterward Sandor had roared at him like a crazy man, threatening him, but they'd come through it whole and he'd only laughed back. He hadn't even realized anything was so wrong until the next day, when Sandor had brought the Coast Guard down on him and inspectors had swarmed over the boat and he'd wound up facing so many charges that his head still spun when he remembered them all.

Drunkenness in flagrant violation of safety regulations incompetence, misbehavior, negligence, unskillfulness, endangering human life. Too few life preservers, too few fire extinguishers, horn out of order, bilge ventilators inoperative, glame arresters missing from carburetors, protective covers missing from storage batteries, leaky fuel lines. He had had to surrender his license.

The hearing officer, Marine Inspection, U. S. Coast Guard, not only denied his appeal; he had also been fined $600 for violations of Sections 6, 7 and 8 of the Motor Boat Act. They might as well have torn his heart out.

Since then he had fished for a living, all alone with Eva, pulling in grouper and snapper and porgy and cobia for pocket money. He had been able now and then to sneak a few paying passengers aboard as "guests."

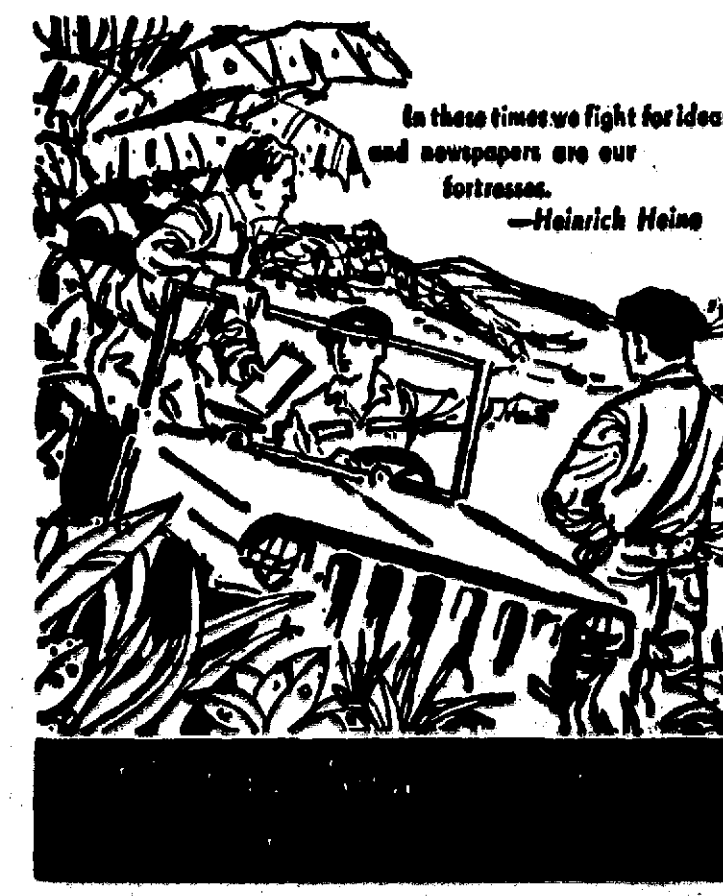

Thanks to Gert, Hugo Snador was paying for the terrible harm he'd done. Sandor was about to give a fine new life back to Ches Becker. Maybe even... waiting somewhere to be found in the islands... maybe even another Eva.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The three television networks are accepting paid political broadcasts, occasionally pre-empting entertainment programs and making room for short talks at the end of shows. They are doing it, but none really likes them very much.
The reason is clear: A political broadcast, even when it only a five-minute one — invariably loses some of the audience, over and above the usual end-of-program channel switching. Studies made during the 1960 campaign indicated that a political advertisement, regardless of the party that paid for it, caused a drop-out of audience about 12 per cent higher than usual. That, of course, was not true of the Kennedy-Nixon debates which rolled up huge audiences.
This year, paid, half-hour campaign programs by both Republican and Democrats in spots normally occupied by entertainment shows have caused sharp anticipated drop-off in audience sizes, reflected in the projected figures of television rating services.
The new national Nielsen ratings — the yardstick most generally used by the television industry in judging the size of television audiences — show that during the last two weeks of September, NBC's "Bonanza" was TV's most popular show, followed by ABC's new "Bewitched," and year-old "Fugitive." Other new show in the top ten were CBS' "Gomer Pyle — U.S.M.C.," ABC's "No Time for Sergeants," "Peyton Place" and "The Addams Family."

The short day for all its employees was adopted by the U.S. government on June 13, 1912.
The State of Rhode Island is not actually an island.

Outstanding Sportswriter

Governor Terry Sanford of North Carolina, right, presents the Martini & Rossi Sportsman's Sportswriter Trophy to Allison Danzig, New York Times tennis writer, at the Sportscasters and Sportswriters Awards Program in Salisbury, N. C.

SALISBURY, N.C.—For five years now the nation's top sportswriters and sportscasters have been assembling in this pretty little town of 25,000 each spring to participate in an annual awards program which honors the top men in their profession.
For three days Salisbury becomes Sportstown, U.S.A. You can find such top sportswriters and sportscasters as Red Smith, Lindsey Nelson, Chris Schenkel, John Carmichael, Vince Scully, Jim Murray breaking bread with the friendly folks down here who revel in playing host to these sports chroniclers. Nearly a hundred of their fraternity journey here from all parts of the nation each year.
This year a new award was added to the National Sports-

Swordsmen Turn Tables on Gals

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—When it comes to crossing swords it's a real asset to have women on your side. This is particularly true in the National Fencing Championships held here each year.

This year more than 20 teams participated in the competition. All but one, the New York Athletic Club, had women on their teams. Consequently, the NYAC went into the competition with a handicap of approximately 50 points—which is the number of points the women could accumulate.
When the sabre rattling was over, however, the New York Athletic Club team had conquered not only all their adversaries, but the handicap of having no women on the team, to emerge victor for the fourth time in the last five years. Last year the NYAC lost out by one point.
In winning the over-all team championship for the coveted Martini & Rossi Trophy, the NYAC topped the Gsizar group from Philadelphia and the Fencers Club of New York. The NYAC racked up a total of 54 points—a margin of 13 over the nearest competitor in the

Pressure Up Under Metal Price Lids

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Pressure is building up under the metal price lids. It's the hottest thing in the price picture today. And it carries with it the hint that increases in metal costs could spread in time to consumer goods prices, even those products using very little metal.

Ex-Governor Indicted on Bribe Charge

BOSTON (AP) — Former Democratic Gov. Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts has been indicted for allegedly conspiring to arrange a bribe.
The 53-year-old lawyer, who was governor from 1956 to 1960, was accused of conspiring with four members of the Governor's Council in 1960 to arrange payment of a bribe to gain reappointment of Anthony Dinatale as state commissioner of public works.
The four councilors also were indicted Tuesday in the closing minutes of the life of a special grand jury that has returned more than 150 indictments against 40 persons most of them against former state officials, and 10 corporations. The jury was in session 8½ months.
One of the 40 indicted has been acquitted.
Furcolo said the charge against him was "obviously political" since it was brought three weeks before the election.
The aim of the investigation by the Massachusetts Crime Commission, which compiled the evidence presented to the grand jury, "was to get something on me at any cost," Furcolo said.
"If the accusation is not political, I challenge the prosecution to guarantee me a trial before election day," he said.
Chief Justice G. Joseph Tauro of the Massachusetts Superior Court promised that civil sessions would be closed down if necessary to provide judges for speedy trials.
Furcolo first entered public life in 1948 when he was elected to Congress at the age of 37. He was re-elected in 1950 but resigned during 1952 to accept appointment as state treasurer.
Elected to a full two-year term in that post in the 1952 election, Furcolo then tried for the U.S. Senate. He was defeated by Republican Sen. Leverett Saltonstall.
After his two terms as Massachusetts governor, Furcolo tried again for the Senate but failed to win the Democratic nomination.
Furcolo returned to private law practice after his 1960 defeat. His wife, Katherine, died early this year of cancer.
Indicted for conspiracy with Furcolo Tuesday were Democrats Ernest C. Stasiun of Fairhaven, Michael J. Favulli of Worcester, Raymond F. Sullivan of Springfield and Joseph R. Crimmins of Winchester. All except Favulli are still members of the Governor's Council.
The Governor's Council in Massachusetts consists of eight persons and approves most gubernatorial appointments and state contracts.

ging for higher prices they say are badly needed. The talk is bubbling like the molten metal in company mills.
Copper prices soar — and then tumble at the suggestion the U. S. government might tap its sizable stockpile to ease the current shortage. But even this prospect, which government officials call unlikely, carries little weight beyond the daily commodity futures market.
Silver prices are held in leash by still another, and comparably much bigger, government stockpile of that metal. But it's getting harder to quiet talk of turning from silver to base metals for minting U. S. coins. And silver users won't bet on price stability as a long-range prospect.

Tin, zinc and lead have climbed steadily in price as world industrial demand currently exceeds world production. Aluminum prices have risen.
Various steel products have gone up in price as demand mounted. But basic steel has held at the list prices. Now the top men in almost all of the biggest steel companies have gone on record as saying basic steel, too, must rise — even before the union starts its announced drive to get higher wages and more fringe benefits next spring.

The presidential election campaigning has muted the sound of the steel companies' plugs, but the talk builds up almost daily.

Copper prices are about as confused as they could be. U. S. producers recently increased the price to 34 cents pound. Chile has put a 35-cent lag on its copper exports. Other world producers are quoting 32.5 cents.
World metal price fluctuations could be even more marked, once the elections in the United States and the United Kingdom are out of the way.
